Talk With a Duck

The Ridiculous Attempt To Get The Duck Walk Vineyard's Name Changed

By Dan Rattiner

One of the best wineries on the eastern end of Long Island is the Duck Walk Vineyard in Southampton. But six months ago, a man named Dan Duckhorn out in California filed a lawsuit against Duck Walk demanding they change the name. He owns the Duckhorn Vineyard in Napa Valley and says this is an illegal appropriation of his reputation. The name "Duck," in any context that has to do with wine, belongs to him.

Duckhorn apparently has lots of money and prior to his lawsuit against Duck Walk, filed lawsuits against vineyards in Oregon and New Jersey. To avoid an expensive legal fight, these other vineyards caved and changed their names.

But Dr. Herodotus Damianos, the owner of Duck Walk, has decided to fight the lawsuit. Legal papers have gone back and forth. The latest was a demand by Duckhorn that the judge place a gag order preventing anyone from talking to the press about the case. The judge complied, Dr. Damianos said the last time I went over there. And so he could not tell me any further news. I would have nothing new to tell my readers.

And so, depressed and confused, I went down to Mecox Bay nearby and sat down on the shore to think about what to do. Ducks are a Long Island tradition. In fact, one was now paddling over.

"Quack," it said.

Fortunately, I had with me a pocket-sized Ajax Speech Translation Communicator. I pointed it at the duck. Fiddled with some dials.

"Duckbutt should be HAPPY to be associated with Duck Walk. It IMPROVES his reputation."

"Don't point that thing at me," the duck said.

"Sorry." But the job was done.

"You look kind of down in the dumps," the duck said.

"Well, I am," I said. "I'm supposed to do this story about Duck Walk Vineyards, which is in a legal fight to keep its name."

"I can help you with that," the duck said. "I know all about it."

"How can you know all about it?"

"All us ducks know about it. We got ears. We listen."

I let that pass.

"Listen. What's going on with the name Duck Walk is a disgrace. They make great wine at Duck Walk. Have you tried the 1998 Cabernet Sauvignon? It won a gold medal. The 2001 Chardonnay Reserve? Another gold medal winner. Duckbutt should be HAPPY to be associated with Duck Walk. It IMPROVES his reputation."

"Duckhorn," I said.

"Whatever," the duck said.

"He thinks Duck Walk is riding on the Duckbird back? It is HE that is riding on the Duck Walk back. Damianos should sue HIM."

"You know Dr. Damianos?"

"We all know Dr. Damianos. A fine man. And so is Jason Damianos, his son who runs Duck Walk. Late at night we get tired of paddling around. We walk over there. And if they're around, they'll uncork a 1999 Duck Walk Aphrodite, pour a few shot glasses and put them around for us."

"Are you over 21?"

"I'm a duck. I can be any age I want to drink. Are you over 21?"

South O' the Highway (and the North too)

A Judge has ruled that the new power cable under Long Island Sound between Connecticut and Long Island may not be activated yet. This means that when the power goes off this summer and they push the button to restart it, nothing may happen. Richard Kessel, head of LIPA, is working on it.

It was announced Monday that CalPERS, the California retirement system, is investing $200 million in a fund managed by W L Ross & Co to revive small Japanese businesses. Southampton's Wilbur Ross, Chairman of W L Ross, is expecting to raise another $800 million. The belief is that Japan's battered stock market has finally reached bottom.

Ralph Lauren was awarded the 2003 Society Award for Excellence in Corporate Leadership last week for his commitment to the Ralph Lauren Center for Cancer Care and Prevention, to open in Harlem shortly. The new Center is a partnership between Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, North General Hospital and Polo Ralph Lauren, providing community based outpatient care for minorities.

Steven Spielberg of East Hampton tops Premiere magazine's 2003 Power List of the entertainment industry's most influential people. Mr. Spielberg's close friend, actor Tom Hanks, ranks 13 on the list. Peter Herbst, editor at Premiere, characterized Mr. Spielberg as "the Tiger Woods of the movies... playing a different game than everyone else." Tiger Woods might be pleased to be called the Steven Spielberg of golf.

Mick Jagger and the Rolling Stones cancelled concerts in SARS stricken China, while opening in Bombay and Bangkok last week.

The East Village loft once owned by Larry Rivers was acquired by Wes Anderson for $1.7 million, through a deal struck shortly before the Pop artist's death last August. The 5,700 square foot apartment was also habituated by artist Fred Wilson, Beat poet Allen Ginsberg and sculptor Claes Oldenberg. The loft was without walls or privacy, with the space divided between living space and an art studio. Mr. Rivers spent most of his time in his Southampton home.

740 Park Avenue holds the record for New York's most expensive co-op sale: Saul Steinberg to Steven Schwartzman for $37 million. Other owners in the building have included Ronald Perelman's first wife, Faith Golding, Ron Lauder, Marshall Field, Edgar Bronfman and John D. Rockefeller. The 740 Park's residence of Japanese Ambassador, Koichi Haraguchi, will be on the market for $20 million when he moves to the newly renovated historic mansion on East 62nd St purchased by the Japanese government in 1998 for $21.5 million.

Producer Marty Richards of Southampton was called to court Monday in New Jersey. Children of his late wife, Mary Lea, are opposed to his receiving money from the $800 million J. Seward Johnson Charitable Trust. Two choice Trump Tower condominiums were sold by Mr. Richards, who has decided to focus his efforts on his sumptuous digs at the River House. Perhaps he will display his new Oscar for Best Picture, Chicago there.

The world premiere of Death of a Dynasty will be featured at the 2003 Tribeca Film Festival. Directed by Damon Dash, CEO, Roc-a-Fella Films and Roc-a-Wear, the film was produced by

SOUTHAMPTON COLLEGE PROUDLY
THE DAN'S PAPERS THEY MADE THE MOVIE HERE PRESENTS
FILM FESTIVAL

Featuring films that either take place on Long Island or were filmed here.

2 PM Saturday, April 26 - GARBO TALKS - Sidney Lumet directs other Hamptonites in a charming and poignant story. A dutiful son, Ron Silver goes about fulfilling his mother's wish to meet Greta Garbo. Ann Bancroft, as the tough mom, is a trip. The meeting in the closing scene features the fab Betty Comden, as Garbo. Darn, we gave away the ending.

ACCABONAC HARBOR, a 9 minute impressionistic documentary by Director/Producer/Cinematographer Alec Hirschfeld of East Hampton will be shown before GARBO TALKS. The film features original music by Rick Salter of The Springs and Will Ryan of Napeague. Mr. Hirschfeld, whose credits include TERMINATOR, STEPMOM, THE EQUALIZER, and SPIN CITY, will introduce the film.

2 PM Saturday, May 3 - A SHOCK TO THE SYSTEM - Michael Caine stars, yet again, in "Movies Made Here"; as in so many others he's a bit naughty. Here he realizes how easy it is to get ahead in the ad business...kill off people in your way. A shady dark comedy of the greedy 80's and 90's, it puts Elizabeth McGovern and Swoosie Kurtz in harm's way with giggles.

2 PM Saturday, May 10 - THE WOODY ALLEN PROJECT - A musical jaunt in Europe and back home to visit his mom and dad here on the Island. Pop thought Wood should have been a druggist. His wife, Soon Yi, has to put up with Woody's kvetching on tour and thinks maybe daddy knew best. The music put out by Woody's band is so toe-tapping happy, you'd never know he's such a sourpuss.

Duck

"Yes."

"Well good for you. Want to see my driver's license?"

"You drive a car?"

"Hey, I'm a duck. It's a joke."

"Oh."

"Let me ask you something," the duck continued. "You think Burger King is going to shut down Burger Heaven because they own the name Burger?"

"They can't do that."

"That's right. You think somebody owns the name McNugget?"

"Yes I do."

"How about Chicken a la King? You think Chicken a la King is going to shut down Chicken Fricassee? They're going to shut down Chicken Cacciatore? Chicken Parmesan? Chicken Teriyaki? Chicken Kiev?"

"No."

"Well, nobody is going to win in court to get title to the name duck. Count on it."

"I will."

"I might add we ducks talk about this all the time. It would be a big deal, somebody taking over your name. Maybe Duckhead is going to pay off a judge. Maybe a jury is going to feel sorry for Duckhead and make some crazy decision. WHAT WILL WE DO?"

"What will YOU do?"

"It's our birthright. You have a birthright. What would you do if somebody got the rights to the name Human?"

"You could call yourselves mallards."

"Only some of us are mallards. Mallards are a certain kind of duck. Don't get me wrong. Some of my best friends are mallards. This country has produced some GREAT mallards."

"So what are you going to do?"

"If Duckbreath wins, we're gonna try to change the name of the whole species to warthogs."

"Warthogs is taken."

"It is? This guy Duckfoot owns warthogs?"

"No."

"Well, we're just talking about it. We haven't decided. We change the name to warthogs and maybe some ducks won't go along. Maybe the whole effort will fall apart. We will be a species without a name."

"There's that rock star called 'The Artist Formerly Known as Prince.'"

"We thought of that. But 'Formerly Known as Ducks'? It just doesn't, if you'll pardon the pun, fly."

"Mr. Damianos won't lose."

"I don't think so. And then there is this gag order. We are really upset about that. You have no idea. It's totally unconstitutional. Half the time we talk about what to call ourselves. The other half of the time we talk about somebody coming over and putting a gag on us. Can you imagine? They tie this gag on our beaks and we won't even be able to talk about what we would call ourselves. Or anything else for that matter."

"Nobody is going to put a gag on you," I said.

"Have you read the gag order?"

"No."

"Read it. It's a judge's ruling. Right there in black and white. They could come around with the gags anytime. So we stay out in the middle of the pond most of the time. But you know what? We won't stand for it. It's true without arms we can't take gags off our own beaks, but we can work together. We've talked about it. We're going to each one of us peck off the gag to the duck on our right. Then we're going to run away."

"To where?"

"We're going to split up. Half to Timbuktu. Half to Kalamazoo. Both those places, they tell me, have freedom of beaks. And freedom of speech. And we have a lot to say."

"So you do."

"So, they get one group of us, the other group lives to fight another day. That's the plan. But don't put it in your paper."

"I won't."

"And give our regards to Dr. Damianos and Jason Damianos if you see them."

"I will."

"And tell them if they need us for anything, anything at all, they know where to find us. Right here in the middle of Mecox Bay. Except when we see someone sad like you. Then we come over. We're behind Dr. Damianos 100%."

"Okay."

"And try the 1999 Late Harvest Gewürztraminer. It won a silver medal at the Grand Harvest Awards in California just last month."

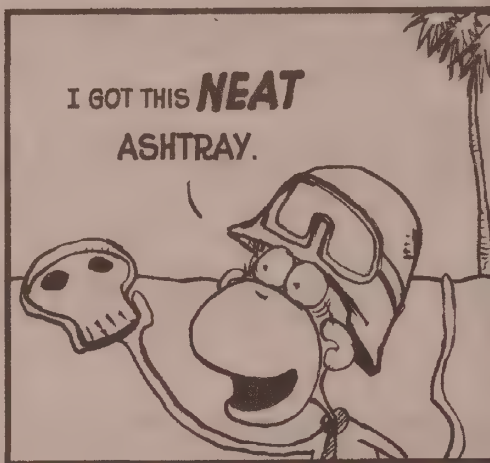

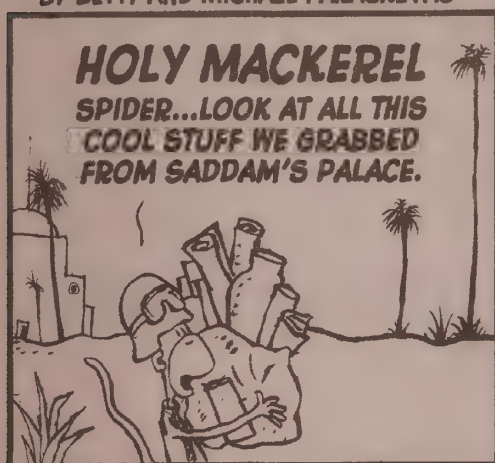

"Uh oh," I said. "The batteries just died on my translator."

"Quack," the duck said. "Quack, quack." And he swam away.

The Pickleworks Train Wreck, Laments And Celebrating A Growing Nation

By Dan Rattiner

Alan Lomax, the great collector of American Folk music who passed away last year, spent much of the last twenty years of his life at his East Hampton home. He lived up the street from me, was a friend of mine, and a great deal of what I know about the history of music, particularly American Folk music, I learned from him.

"One of the most interesting things," he told me, "is the difference between the music created by people in a cold climate and the music created by people in a hot climate. In a cold climate, singers sing songs about the elements, about wild creatures they encounter, about their weapons, their shields and their body armor and how, after giving the matter great thought, they prevail. The songs are generally stories. People listen to them, fascinated.

"In a hot climate, singers compose songs with repetitive choruses that workers can join in singing as they work." Thus Harry Belafonte sings "Day-oh" as he asks "mister tally man tally me banana." And from the frozen north we have "Black Flies," composed by Wade Hemsworth, about one of the perils workers faced while helping to build a hydro-electric dam in northern Canada.

*Tw'as early in the spring, when I decided to go
For to work up in the woods of North Ontario.
The unemployment office said they'd send me through*

*To the Little Abatibi with the survey crew
And the black flies, the little black flies,*

*Always the black flies, no matter where you go,
I'll die with the black flies pickin' my bones,
In North Ontario, in North Ontario.*

In subsequent verses, the singer tells you how the cook lathered him with bacon grease to get him through. And in the end, he tells you that never again will he go back to North Ontario.

I owe my fascination of collecting songs to Alan Lomax. The music industry is fascinated with Alan Lomax, too. Last month, they awarded him, posthumously, a lifetime achievement Grammy competition be held to write a song incorporating the sound of the railroad train that passes the festival grounds every evening at 8:35 p.m., whether the festival is in session or not. They have accepted this challenge and have sent out the call to music schools. Deadline is May 30. So far, they tell me they have 22 entries and for first prize — selected by the world-renowned composer Lukas Foss — the winning piece will have its world premiere at the festival this summer.

I also suggested somebody write a song about another Long Island railroad train, the Shelter Island Express, that left the tracks and crashed into Golden's Pickle Works in Calverton on a stormy night in 1926. It was one of the worst train wrecks on Long Island and among those who died in the brine was stockbroker Hamilton Fish, a member of a prominent Manhattan family.

Songs I collect are about love, war, God, politics, loneliness, right and wrong. They are always products of the times in which they were written. And sometimes they tell us things about people such as George W. Bush.

For example, there was this gospel song I heard sung by Garrison Keillor on National Public Radio last November. It was entitled "Power in the Blood," and I thought the title was so unusual I downloaded it onto my computer, played it and learned it.

*Would you be free from the burden of sin?
There's Power in the Blood, Power in the Blood
Would you over evil a victory win?*

award. Another award went to Paul Simon of Montauk for the work he did with Art Garfunkel.

In any case, some things have happened to me personally because of my friendship with Mr. Lomax. For one thing, I periodically invite musicians over to my house — guitarists, banjo players, flute players, washtub bass players and so forth — so we can swap songs we have learned.

For another, I have gotten involved in getting new songs composed. Here on Long Island, for instance, I suggested to the people that run the two-week long Hamptons Music Festival that a

Songs (continued from previous page)

*There's a wonderful Power in the Blood
There's power, power, wonder working power
In the blood of the Lamb,
There's power, power, wonder working power,
In the sacred blood of the Lamb.*

In addition to downloading the lyrics, I downloaded the history of this song. It is an old gospel song composed in 1899 by Lewis E. Jones at a camp meeting in Mountain Lake Park, Maryland.

I don't know how many of you are familiar with camp meetings. They are weeklong Christian gatherings, and they are held around the country for prayer, healing and friendship. In the evenings around a bonfire, there is preaching and singing. All members of a church in a particular region of the country are invited to attend a camp meeting. Participants live for the week in small cabins, eat communal meals, meet people from all over. There are no camp meetings in the Hamptons, but on Nantucket, there is a collection of hundreds of tiny Victorian bungalows all in rows close together, where meetings are held, and there is another meeting ground, even larger, on Martha's Vineyard. Several thousand people fill them to capacity one week a year, and they are vacant and gotten ready for that one week the other fifty-one weeks. I guess Lewis E. Jones thought there ought to be a new rousing spiritual for the camp meeting he headed up in Maryland way back when. The song stuck.

Anyway, George W. Bush, who went through a Born Again experience not so long ago to restore his body to health and his mind to faith after bouts of alcoholism and other sins, gave a speech last December about the power of American democracy, and he used the phrase "wonder working power." I had just memorized all the words in "Power in the Blood" and was struck by his use of this phrase. I think it speaks volumes about his personal point of view.

There are songs about war. Here are the lyrics from the most popular war song during World War II.

*Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition.
Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition.
Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition
And we'll all stay free.*

There are songs celebrating bravery. Here are the lyrics to one, written in 1927, on the occasion of Charles Lindbergh's famous solo flight to Paris. I found this song on an old shellac 78-RPM record left in the attic of a home I bought not long ago in East Hampton.

*Lindy, what a flying fool was he.
Lindy, his name will live in history.
He flew over the ocean, and flew all alone,
Gambling with fate and with dangers unknown.*

*Others may take a trip across the sea,
Upon some future day,
But take your hats' off,
To lucky Lucky Lindberg,
The Eagle of the U. S. A.*

Then, as I wrote about earlier, there are songs about railroad trains. The railroad train was to the 19th century what the rockets to the planets will be to the 21st century. Imagine the excitement of a train coming down the tracks through the peaceful rural towns of the 19th century. Here is one, written in 1933, about the Wabash Cannonball, a train that connected the people of northern Michigan to the outside world.

*"Oh the eastern states are dandy,
So the people they always say,
From New York to St. Louis,
to Chicago by the Bay,
From the Hills of Minnesota,*

As We Plan For the Summer's Charity Events, Consider These

By Dan Rattiner

This is the time of year when the people who organize fundraisers in the Hamptons begin to make plans. Where shall we hold our event? Who shall we invite? Who should the beneficiary be?

I would like to suggest the repair and construction funds of four local historic buildings as potential beneficiaries. In recent years, practically everything that is treasured in our community has been restored. But the following remain unrestored, or, because of one thing or another, endangered.

THE SAG HARBOR PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH STEEPLE. This structure was built high on a hill in that town in a remarkable Egyptian style that was all the rage for a few years during the mid-1800s. The steeple on top of the church, tall and slender, rose 80 feet in the air above the roof and, because it was already on a hill, the church became the tallest structure on all of Long Island. It was the wonder of its time, and a visible symbol of that whaling town, visible from twenty miles out to sea.

The Hurricane of '38 brought the steeple crashing to the ground where it was smashed beyond repair. It has never been rebuilt.

Now, however, a fund has been set up to take in the money needed to build a new steeple atop the church. Call Michel Bus (pronounced Buce) at 725- 0178.

THE VAIL LEVITT THEATRE. In 1885, a Riverhead entrepreneur named David Vail built a three-story music hall, which later became known as The Riverhead Opera House. No operas were ever held there as far as anybody can tell, but it was called The Opera House because there indeed was a theatre in the building and it was the intent of the owner to mount productions of Shakespeare, Greek tragedy and more modern theatre of "first-class vaudeville acts," according to an old playbill. Trouble was thing that sounded very upstanding.

"Opera" was held in this theatre from 1881 until the end of WWI. In 1885, the hall held its first fundraiser, which was a reception staged by a local art teacher to benefit the construction of a pedestal for the "Bartholdi Statue," today known as the Statue of Liberty. People came from all over to support the effort.

Vail sold the building, which included two stores at street level, to Simon Leavitt, a well-known men's clothier who set up shop downstairs from the theatre, in 1908. Leavitt changed the name to the Lyceum Theatre, after the Broadway version, and the theatre prospered with film, lecture and concert bookings for the next ten years.

In 1914, Thomas Edison, who was out here for the summer, presented a program called "Thomas Edison's Talking Pictures." Edison had recently invented the phonograph and thought it might be a good idea to take a silent movie, record dialogue and sound on a phonograph record and play it while the picture was shown. The show received rave reviews. Despite this success, it would be another decade before "talkies" would become mainstream, and it was done on the film itself, rather than the phonograph, where synchronization was never quite exact.

that people in the acting profession in those days were considered godless bohemians of dubious moral character and no upstanding churchgoer wanted any of them in their town. So Vail built this place where they could perform and referred to it as an The Riverhead "Opera House," some-

Needs (continued from previous page)

World War I took a toll on the Lyceum's long run and when it ended and the Roaring Twenties began, the hall became a lavish Chinese restaurant. This lasted until 1925, when a fire destroyed part of what had been the stage. The rest of the hall was miraculously spared. But it would go dark for nearly sixty years until a man named Harold Smith, a local printer, began a campaign to save it.

After a long and painstaking restoration, the Vail Leavitt Music Hall, as it was rechristened in the 1980s, is ready once again for an opening night. The first performance in almost a century will take place on the stage, with heat and light, next month. Call 727-5782 or WLIV1390 radio station owner Vince Tria at 727-1390.

THE ST. ANDREWS DUNE CHURCH. This church, perhaps the most beautiful of all the churches on eastern Long Island, sits on a plot of land oceanfront in Southampton, open to the public in the summertime. It is non-denominational. It is available for weddings, baptisms, bar mitzvahs. And beginning about ten years ago, it began to be threatened by the sea because of erosion. Five years ago, with the congregation desperate, construction workers picked up the church and moved it fifty feet away from the ocean to keep it from crashing into the sea. Now the sea is threatening the church again. And again it may have to be moved. Call the president of the board of trustees, Alan McFarkand, at 212-449-5694.

THE MONTAUK PLAYHOUSE. What is now the Montauk Playhouse was originally built as a glass-enclosed space housing two tennis courts as part of developer Carl Fisher's grand Montauk Manor Hotel complex in 1926. The Manor went into bankruptcy in 1961, but even before that, this great glass and stone building was abandoned by the Manor management. The space served for awhile as a boxing arena, an assembly hall and a theater for WWII troops. It also served as a barn for the annual cattle drive held in Montauk in the late 1950s. During this event, about two hundred head of cattle were taken from the pastures out at Deep Hollow Ranch and driven through the center of downtown Montauk past the stores. The police cooperated, getting all the steers down to the railroad and this giant indoor space just across the street where they could be held until the arrival of the train.

The old tennis court building served as a summer stock theatre in the late 1950s, when the name was changed to the Montauk Playhouse, before finally becoming a summer movie theater. The space has now been vacant since the mid-70s and was donated, along with the surrounding property, to East Hampton Town in 1999.

The Montauk Playhouse building is now slated to become a community center. But the roof is in serious disrepair and the walls, though made of stone, need reinforcing. Call project director Maureen Rutkowski at 668-1540.

300 People Audit Alan Alda's Lecture To A Southampton College Class

By Dan Rattiner

Actor Alan Alda agreed to be a guest at a writing and filmmaking class at Southampton College last Thursday evening. And so, with his permission, since many people other than just the students would be interested in hearing what he had to say, Alda was asked if it would be okay to hold his lecture in the largest facility on campus, the Avram Theater, and invite people to come and "audit" it. He said that would be all right with him. And so there he was, on the stage at the Avram Theater, with the 40 people from the class in the central orchestra seats, and about 250 more people sitting in all the other seats. That about filled the place. There were more people standing in the back.

The stage was set with a single lecturer's chair on a Turkish carpet, with a spotlight on it, and a table with a water glass and a pitcher on it nearby. Alda appeared with Dean Chuck Hitchcock to light applause and Hitchcock reeled off a virtually complete list of accomplishments by Alda, including plays he has written and acted in, plays he has written and directed, plays and movies he has starred in or had a supporting role in and a wide variety of awards including Emmys, Golden Globes and Oscars. It took the better part of five minutes.

Hitchcock also announced that Alan and his wife, Arlene, who was in the audience, would both be awarded honorary doctorates at this year's graduation ceremonies, so he was now honored to present, "Professor and soon-to-be Doctor Alan Alda." And everybody, including Alda, laughed and cheered. Then Alda sat down and started to talk.

"I'd like a volunteer from the audience," he said.

A man got up and came on stage.

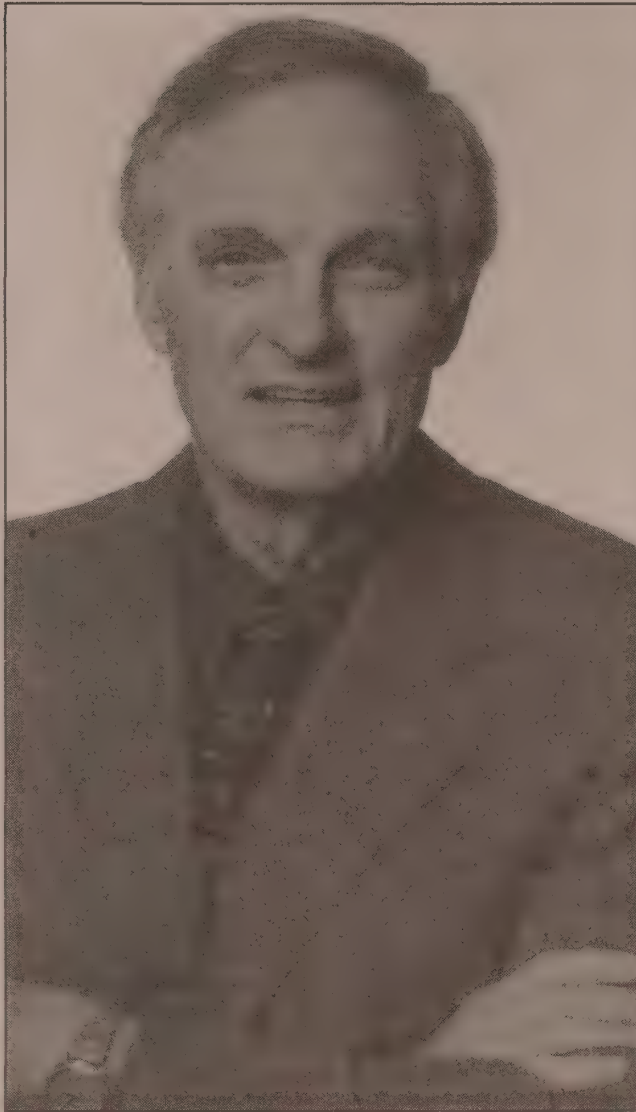

"I'd like to ask you to just walk across the stage," Alda said. "From here to there." He pointed. "And I'd like you people in the audience to note how interesting it is that he does this." He pointed. And the volunteer, shrugged and walked from here to there.

Alda then called him over.

"Now That was a dramatic action, though not a very interesting one, I suspect. Now let's try it another way."

Alda took the glass, handed it to the man, then took the pitcher of water and filled the glass to the very brim. With the slightest movement, the water would spill.

"Now I want you to walk across the stage and put this glass on the table. Don't spill any. Your life depends on it."

The man walked carefully but, halfway, accidentally spilled a little. The audience groaned. But he finally got it there and the audience cheered and applauded again.

"This is also a dramatic action," he said. "And years ago, and said that the element added in the second walk was human striving. There was a goal. The viewer was interested in seeing if the volunteer could do it.

"When you write, it is very important to be aware of this second element. What is the character trying to do? All characters strive for something. What is it?"

Alda talked for a bit about the work of playwright Harold Pinter, whose characters all strive. Those who dominate other characters, toward the end find themselves dominated by those they originally dominated. The beauty of this is that it just seems so inevitable.

"It's inevitable, but surprising," he said.

Alda devoted the next segment of his talk to what he called exposition, or TELLING the viewer or listener something instead of craftily weaving it into the story as it plays out.

"A classic example of this is burlesque. This is pretty low on the pole stuff. Comics and exotic dancers. Two men come out onto the stage. All that's behind them is the curtain. 'Now here we are in sunny Spain,' one of them says. That's exposition. Stay away from it."

Then Alda talked about the creative process itself, about how it is necessary to just sit down and do it and let everything flow, both the good and the bad, before you try to judge it.

"Writer's block happens," he said, "when you are too judgmental too early. You get one thing out. You pounce on it. Surely it won't be good. But one thing not good leads to another that IS good. They're a chain, like proteins. You have to get them all out.

THEN you look at the good and the bad and cross out what is bad and save what is good.

"Freud had a wonderful way of putting it," he continued. "A writer, he said, is like a shepherd with goats he keeps in a cave at night. He is afraid, in the morning, that when he lets the goats out, people will throw rocks at them. So he lets the not-so-good goats out first, the ugly ones. Then, if nobody throws rocks at them, he lets the better goats out. But the thing is, you have to let ALL the goats out. The good ones, the bad ones, the ugly ones. And don't worry about the rocks until they are all out. Otherwise you run the risk of not letting the good goats out at all."

A student asked Alda if there was anyone, perhaps an editor, who was helpful to him and who he would trust to read his work while it was in progress.

"My wife. I trust Arlene. But I'll never show

I am sure most of you were much more interested in what was going on. Had you on the edge of your seats, particularly when he spilled a bit. Now what's the difference?"

Some Trees Want Yellow Ribbons, Some Don't Want Yellow Ribbons

By Dan Rattiner

The photo on this page was taken on Friday, April 11. Baghdad fell yesterday. We all hope our troops come home soon.

Well, as you can see from the trees, not all of them seem to be of the same opinion about that. These are trees lining Main Street in East Hampton, and as you can see, some of them sport yellow ribbons and some of them do not. Six miles to the west, also along Main Street but in Bridgehampton, there are trees in front of the High School there and every one of them sports a yellow ribbon. Tie a yellow ribbon 'round that old oak tree. We support our troops. We are proud of what you have done. We hope you come home safe soon.

Well, apparently, in East Hampton, there is this divergent opinion about that. I counted 56 trees that had ribbons and 57 trees that did not. It is what makes America great, this ability to have divergent opinions about everything. That is what our troops are defending. That is why our troops are in Iraq and have brought down this brutal dictator after all these years.

How some of these trees decided they didn't want any yellow ribbons around them is a mystery to me. I would have thought every tree would be proud to have a ribbon, but no. I called the East Hampton Village Administrator Larry Cantwell who told me it was just that they only had so much ribbon, but I don't buy that. It's not like they counted the trees, divided by two and put the ribbons on every other tree. You find a ribbon on one tree, then not on the next two trees, then on two trees after that but not on the next three. They seem to be in clusters, those that want the yellow ribbons and those that don't want the yellow ribbons, just like you get clusters of Democrats and clusters of Republicans.

I also find it difficult to believe, considering these circumstances, that the Village of East Hampton would tie a ribbon onto a tree whether they liked it or not. That is the sort of thing a dictator does. One would ask a tree. That's how we do things in America.

Knock knock. Who's there. It's me, from the Highway Department. You want one of these yellow ribbons? What for? To support our troops fighting in Iraq. Okay. I go along with that.

Knock knock. Who's there? Me. From the Highway Department. Want to wear a yellow ribbon? No way. You sure? Absolutely. It's just to support our troops. I'm entitled to my opinion.

Yes you are. And I'm entitled to keep them to myself. That too.

Knock knock. If he's not wearing a ribbon, I'm not wearing a ribbon.

Okay.

In the end, though, when all the debate is done and the decisions made, we rally around our leaders and support them. Not to support them would give aid and comfort to the enemy. And we are not about to do that.

Tomorrow, which is Saturday, April 12, therefore, it is expected that several hundred people will assemble at the Star Room in Bridgehampton from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. to support our troops. They will be from all walks of life. From Democrats to Republicans, from Right Wingers to Left Wingers and they will leave their opinions at the door to let our troops know that they are behind them. Admission to the event is by letter, a letter addressed to one of our troops serving abroad.

That event will be over by the time you read this. Also, I suspect, we will see more of the trees on Main Street wearing yellow ribbons, perhaps even all of them.

America is the home of the brave and the land of the free, where people from every part of the globe have come to find economic opportunity, to enjoy freedom from oppression and to have the right to say what they want, when they want and where they want, until the debating is over and the time for action for our country is upon us.

Wait a minute. I hear a tree calling. He's changed his mind. He thought the yellow ribbons were some kind of fashion statement, some frilly feminine adornment that no self respecting beer drinking tree would ever wear. Now he has heard different. The East Hampton Village Highway Department is on its way.

600 LETTERS OF SUPPORT GO TO OUR SOLDIERS

By Dan Rattiner

Last Saturday, more than 300 people gathered at the Star Room in Wainscott to attend an event demonstrating this community's solidarity with our soldiers abroad. Called Dan's Papers Support Our Soldiers (SOS), people from every segment of society attended. There were couples from oceanfront estates, blue collar workers, firemen, police officers, several members of the National Guard in uniform, farmers, fishermen, members of the American Legion and VFW, and various members of the press.

All these people, before the war, had opinions about it. Indeed, one man who opposed the war before it began showed me a protest button he still carried "just in case," as he put it. But it stayed in his pocket. We were all united now, he said.

There were red, white and blue balloons at the entry gates to the Star Room, also yellow ribbons on the trees. The WLNG Newswagon was in the parking lot, Paul Sydney at the helm, to broadcast the proceedings on the radio and interview those coming and going. Admission to the event was a letter to a soldier, for which there was, on a table, a big basket. At the end of the night we had more than 600 letters. They will be given to the brother of

Doing Time In A Caribbean Prison For A Crime He Didn't Commit

By Joshua May

"Prison is prison," William Labrador said over the telephone as he sat at home in Southampton. "They can take everything away. Everything. But thank God for the support and prayers of my family, friends and the whole Southampton community. That's the only way that I was able to get through it."

I spoke with Labrador on Monday afternoon, around 5:30, which was exactly one week after he had been released from Her Majesty's Prison at Balsam Ghut on the British Virgin Island of Tortola. "It was just about now on that day one week ago that I was jumping in the ocean," he said with a pronounced note of relief in his voice. "I went swimming and then went to Lambert's for a cheeseburger."

That was how more than three years in prison for a crime he didn't commit came to an end.

"Balsam Ghut is a new prison," explained Labrador. "It opened in '97 and is the crown jewel of Her Majesty's prisons in the Caribbean," he added with an ironic note. "It is a five-acre compound that sits atop a hill and there are two wings for convicted inmates, B and C. I was in A-Wing before and during the trial and then I was moved to B-Wing after I was convicted. There were 79 prisoners in the jail — 78 after I walked out last Monday." Balsam Ghut is constructed of concrete and stucco and sits atop a hill on the eastern part of Tortola. Twenty-foot fences with razor wire on top encircle the four wings of the prison and it's a cruel irony how amazing the view of the Caribbean is down below.

"I was in a cell alone. It measured six feet by nine feet" — smaller than most SUVs — evening. Others are on a stricter work program but I wasn't allowed to leave the compound at all. After they unlocked my door in the morning I'd start my day.

"I'd go out into the compound, usually at about 7 a.m. and do some laundry if I had laundry to do," Labrador continued. "Then I'd go feed my cats" — he had five cats that he started taking care of in the prison and they made the trip back to Southampton with him — "and then I'd water the gardens if they needed watering. Breakfast would be around 8 and then after that I'd get on a stationary bike and ride 50 kilometers. After biking I'd lift weights until about 11:30 and then it'd be time for lunch.

"After lunch I'd usually take a shower and then listen to the news. You could get day old broadcasts of Larry King and the other news programs," said Labrador. "From 3:30 to 5:30 it was communal time in the compound so all of the prisoners would be out."

It was during this period in the afternoon that Labrador began helping the other inmates with their appeals and their permission applications to get into work release programs. "All of the inmates were really sup-

"and it had fifteen foot ceilings," said Labrador, a bit reticent to detail the physical surroundings of the prison. "At 6:30 in the morning they would turn the key and open my cell and I was allowed out into the compound. There are four different categories of prisoners there. Some are allowed to go into the town and work and then return in the portive of me and I wanted to help them as much as I could because the court system there is so skewed and unfair," explained Labrador. "It was amazing," he continued, "how I was able to really develop an understanding with the West Indians there. I mean, many of them didn't have much education and they didn't have nearly the kind of legal support that I did, so it was an opportunity to help them out. And the court system is so political that it's amazing to see the kind of legal representation people get there."

In the afternoon Labrador would bike another 50 kilometers — for those of you who are counting, that's about 62 miles a day, or two laps around the world over the course of the three years he spent in prison — and then dinner would come at around 6 p.m. Lockdown was at 8, when he would return to his cell and that was Labrador's existence during the time he spent in jail.

For someone who was railroaded through an unjust trial that hinged on the testimony of a known liar and con man and then spent more than three years in prison waiting for his appeal to be heard, Labrador has a surprisingly placid view of the events of the last few years.

"Anger and fear can be debilitating in that kind of situation," he said. "If you approach your time there with bitterness and hatred, you'll be changed and I couldn't do that. I had to cling to the things that I would have done in my regular life. I would have taken care of my cats, I would have taken care of the garden, and I would have gone for bike rides, so those are the things that I focused on doing while in prison. I had to find different moments to get me through, and to keep my hopes up, which I did with the support of my family, calls from my mom and my sisters and friends. That's how I made it through without becoming angry and hopeless.

"It has given me a totally new perspective on life," he continued. "Now I realize that the most important things are family and friends and having kids. So many people get caught up focusing on living in the city and climbing the corporate ladder, but that's not what is most important."

After a jubilant return from the Caribbean Labrador now has much to do. He appeared on the "Today" show on Tuesday morning and on "The View" on Thursday.

"The next few months will be filled with family and friends," said Labrador happily. "There'll be lots of hugs and firm handshakes and many, many thanks to everyone who supported me."

Live From Iraq

Nephew Of Westhampton Woman Is Front And Center On The TV News

By Janet Berg

In our family, we happen to have a reporter in Iraq, my 28-year-old nephew, Marc Santora, who is still a wet-behind-the-ears rookie at the "Metro" desk for The New York Times.

Like many families who have loved ones in the Middle East, we can't wait for his safe return. We watched him evolve from a goofy kid, to a well-educated adolescent, known for his zany sense of humor that matured over the years into one of suavity.

When he first started reporting, we couldn't help but smirk at his stealth silhouette, gliding by on the streets of Manhattan in his wrinkled, Columbo-like trench coat. "Have you been living in a car?" we'd ask.

Then, we stood back and took a second look, as every week following, this boy was producing front page articles and was given spectacular assignments that were actually featured as a segues for prime time news. Why, he even got to hob-nob with big celebrities.

The next thing we know, Marc is sent to London to "Boot Camp for Journalists." There he learns how to be a "War Reporter" — training in first aid, preparing for attacks of chemical weapons, and learning how to cope with combat scenarios.

He called my sister soon after, "Mom, I'm in Kuwait. But, don't worry, I'm a writer. I'm here to write, not to get shot at." He loves Kuwait, describing it as a very beautiful, cosmopolitan city. In a recent New York magazine column, Marc is described by Maureen Dowd (who he was formerly an assistant to at the Times desk in Washington DC).

"He's always been dying to smoke cigarettes and drink martinis in exotic datelines," says Ms. Dowd.

Next phone call home, his voice is up another octave, "Mom, I'm in Iraq. I'm watching the troops march in as we speak."

Then, another call; on short notice, our entire family instructed to turn on the TV to the "McNeill Report," where he will be interviewed. There he was for almost 10 minutes, answering questions like a pro. Here in Westhampton Beach I was goofy kid who made those funny faces and loved practical jokes? Seems like yesterday he was running around the suburbs, donning a Halloween mask, and now he's running around in a foreign land, donning a gas mask.

How does he, and so many others, especially those in the armed services, change so quickly into solemn thinkers, and responsible adults? The answer which keeps coming back to me is life "before" 9-11 and life "after" 9-11.

For Americans, especially New Yorkers, it's two different worlds. And the young people in this country do not take freedom for granted, as they fight to keep it alive, here and abroad.

As the troops have been moving forward over the past few weeks in dismantling the Iraqi regime, in one of the worst sandstorms in years, my nephew finds himself in a one-man tent in the desert; living on cans of tuna (which he never liked back in the good 'ol US of A) and rations of Trail Mix. He will surely appreciate his father's cooking when he gets home.

As we've been following the war and Marc's articles, we are amazed at what takes place. He shares his story, as he observes Iraqi civilians while the British cargo vessel carrying relief supplies docks at a southern Iraqi port. Twice the Kuwaitis have been met by crowds that quickly turn into mobs, desperately taking whatever they could, climbing over each other like animals. He is deeply saddened to see the faces of the children.

There are cries heard from the crowds. Many have not eaten and are in need of the basics. One 18-year-old, named Ahmed, from a town of 5,000, said we need food and shoes. We've been without water for over seven days, since the pipe supplying Safwan was damaged.

Another man, by the name of Abu Zahra, said Mr. Hussein's soldiers remain loyal to him, and still lurk in the streets. The sight of them disgusts the people, even though some are friends and cousins.

Again, we read what this young reporter writes, this time from the outskirts of Basra. He describes rocket-propelled grenades launched at British troops, exploding above civilians on the highway, who run for cover, but an unknown number are wounded.

The troops move closer to Basra, Iraq's second largest city, hoping to avoid a street fight, which could be very ugly. The people leave the city in the morning and return in the evening by donkey-pulled carts filled with tomatoes. Or in orange and white cars that used to be taxis. There is a continual mass of black smoke from oil fires and the sound of sporadic machine-guns.

In Sunday's paper, we read Marc's article about the discovery of mass graves by the British soldiers, where there were remains of thousands of bodies at an abandoned military compound. The bones are obviously quite old in this part jail, part military, makeshift morgue, where they also found a catalog containing black and white photos of the dead; many bodies had been mutilated beyond recognition.

Others were shot in the head, obviously placed in the courtyard used as a firing squad. We've all heard about the horrors under the regime of this man, Mr. Hussein — the brainwashing, the torture, the slaughtering of his own people.

Without a doubt, we have to stop the evilness of the Hitlers, and Osama bin Ladens and Saddam Husseins. It's not pleasant, no matter what side you're on, or how well you do; it's hell and war will always be hell. •

*Where the rippling waters fall,
No changes can be taken on the Wabash Cannonball.
Listen to the jingle,
The rumble and the roar,
As you travel through the country
O'er the hills and by the shore
It's mighty tall and handsome
Well known by one and all,
It's the regular combination known as the Wabash Cannonball.*

And then, just last week, I heard a song about a train that wasn't. It was, according to my research on the Internet, written by a man in Nova Scotia in 1965, about a railroad train planned for, the railroad bed laid down but the tracks never put through, in a place called Guysborough County. It is a lament. And it appeals to me because I am a small town newspaperman and it's a small town story about politics and dashed hopes in that county which, if you follow the words, you can figure out is in Nova Scotia. The year is 1875, which you can also figure out from the lyrics.

Observations of an Islander #244

Tax Break

I just thought we could all use a tax break this week after the annual trauma we all go through.

I love that line on the tax form that asks if I want to contribute to the presidential campaign funds. I always check yes because I know they need my money. I found this great quote from Thomas Paine: "War involves in its progress such a train of unforeseen and un-supposed circumstances that no human wisdom can calculate the end. It has but one thing certain, and that is to increase taxes." It got me to wondering what next years tax forms might ask.

"Would you like to contribute $1 to the still-rebuilding Afghanistan fund?"

"Would you like to contribute $2 to the now-rebuilding Iraq fund?"

"Would you like to contribute $3 to the transatlantic Iraq-US oil pipeline? (We hate to ask, but Exxon and Shell can't be expected to pay for the whole thing.)"

"Would you like to place a $4 bet that the IRS could find Osama and Hussein faster than the CIA?"

"Would you like to vote to contribute 10% of all the salaries of the superstars who make more money than God per movie to Cancer Research?"

I found some other fun thoughts about taxes from some other fun and thoughtless people. You can get a chuckle over coffee on these:

"What's the difference between a tax collector and a taxidermist? A taxidermist only takes the skin." —Mark Twain

"The difference between death and taxes is death doesn't get worse every time Congress meets." —Will Rogers

"Alexander Hamilton started the U.S. Treasury with nothing — and that was the closest our country has ever been to being even." —Will Rogers

"The trick is to stop thinking of it as 'your' money" —Revenue Auditor

"The hardest thing in the world to understand is income tax!" —Albert Einstein

"The Government that robs Peter to pay Paul can always depend upon the support of Paul." —George Bernard Shaw

"The avoidance of taxes is the only pursuit that still carries any reward." —J M Keynes

"When there is an income tax, the just man will pay more and the unjust less on the same amount of income." —Plato

"Like mothers, taxes are often misunderstood, but seldom forgotten." —Lord Bramwell

"There is no art which one government sooner learns from another than that of draining money from the pockets of the people." —Adam Smith

"There are two distinct classes of men... those who pay taxes and those who receive and live upon taxes." —Thomas Paine

"There are two systems of taxation in our country: one for the informed and one for the uninformed." —Honorable Learned Hand, US Appeals Court Justice

"Your federal government needs your money so that it can perform vital services for you that you would not think up yourself in a million years." —Dave Barry (US columnist)

"We have from time-to-time complained about the complexity of our revenue laws and the almost impossible challenge they present to taxpayers or their representatives... Our complaints have obviously fallen upon deaf ears." —Arnold Raum (Senior US Tax Court Judge)

IRS motto: "We're Human Beings Just Like You, Except We Breathe Via Gills" —Dave Barry, Returns Of The Living Dead.

"Pledge of Obedience: I pledge obedience, to the bureaucrats, who are the United States government. And to their salaries, for which I pay. One nation, deep in debt, irresponsible, with the slavery of income taxation for all."

—Tomas Estrada-Palma

her anything, even her, before I've let all the goats out."

Alda gave numerous examples of the times he, as well as some of his writer friends, didn't let all the goats out before the rock throwing began.

"I have a friend who had to write a half-hour episode for a TV show. He just couldn't get it out. Finally, he went to a hotel and said that no matter how long it took, he would stay in his room until it was finished. He stayed a week. And when they carried him out on a stretcher, they found in his typewriter just one sentence, the first sentence, and it was crossed out. Then there was another first sentence and another and another and every one of them was crossed out."

This writer, he said, now wrote by dictating into a tape recorder. He would just turn on the tape recorder, tell the story into it, and then drop it off at his secretary's mailbox in the evening. In the morning, on his way to work, he would pick up her transcription and read it. Then he would start rewriting and editing and so forth and the system worked.

Alda took numerous questions from the class, including an interesting one about a play where the main character has lost his memory and so has no idea what he is striving for. "Can the audience deduce the striving?" the student asked.

"Absolutely," Alda said. "And that is a very subtle way to do it."

Most of the questions involved a particular play or film. Alda had seen or read every one of the ones referred to. He is a tremendous scholar. And it was obvious he loves teaching these students what he knows.

"Do you think your being a sex symbol was helpful to your career?" was the last question.

Alda blinked. It was the only time that evening that a question stumped him. Finally he spoke.

"I'm glad I came here tonight and I'm particularly glad I got to hear that last question," he said. Then, softer, "I never heard of myself referred to as a sex symbol before. I don't think I'm a sex symbol."

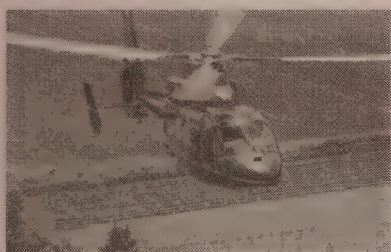

"Thank you very much Dr. Alda," Chuck Hitchcock said, rescuing him. "Thank you so much for coming."

Everyone applauded. And over it, you could hear the voice of a student: COME BACK AND TEACH US A WHOLE COURSE! it said.

Alda smiled and waved and, with Hitchcock, left. And so the audience, most satisfied, rose and left, too.

Then up stepped a politician, he stopped her in her tracks, from what I understand, he turned her center back.

The people down in Guysborough still waiting for that train

The dream they had for many years would prove to be in vain.

I expect to teach this lament the next time I have the musicians over. But I also intend to add something to it, something I think should have been in there in the first place, and that is the name of this dastardly politician. Why? Not to get back at the man, of course. He has long since passed away. And not for historical accuracy, God knows. But because mentioning this man's name serves as a warning to any dastardly politician currently alive who can see how he might be memorialized forever if he should do the same sort of thing. I will try, but I think it very unlikely I will be able to find out who this politician was. So I will make the name up. It will be a common name. Perhaps it will stick.

Then up stepped Gov'nor Blackwood, he stopped her in her tracks,

From what I understand, he turned her center back.

The people down in Guysborough still waiting for that train

The dream they had for many years would prove to be in vain

They will never see that train going down the Guysborough tracks.

They'll never see that old black smoke come pouring from its stacks.

They'll never hear the rattle of the wheels up on the rail.

They'll never hear the whistle blow Along the Guysborough Trail.

By the way, things are added to and subtracted from songs all the time. In this case, I think Alan Lomax, looking down, along with the people who continue to catalogue his collection at Hunter College, would approve.

SUPPORT OUR SOLDIERS

Photos and Text by Ginger Propper

To get into The Star Room in Wainscott Saturday a letter to a soldier serving in Iraq had to be presented. Dan Rattiner and Linda Shapiro welcomed soldiers, veterans and families with sons and daughters overseas. Thanks to: Dan Wassong of Del Labs and Sally Hanson Cosmetics, Scott Gray and Scott Storbo of the Star Room; Long Island Sound; Park Avenue Mortgage; Dewars Scotch Whiskey; Cynthia Sestito; Paul Sydney of WLNG; Linda Shapiro; Gurney's Inn; Golden Pear; American Bistro; Mardi Gras; Saracen; Blue Duck Bakery; Bobby Van's; Schmidt's and Blue Parrot.

Letters (continued from page 29)

Brigadier General Vincent Boles already in Iraq, who intends to see to their distribution.

There was music by Long Island Sound entertainment, an open bar featuring a Freedom Cocktail by Dewar's Scotch, large donations from Dan Wassong of Del Laboratories and Ellen Bitton of Park Avenue Mortgage Group, and there were hors d'oeuvres, including edibles from half a dozen restaurants. Perhaps the most imaginative of those was the donation from Golden Pear, which was platefuls of Victory Muffins, made with white flour, red raspberries and blueberries and festooned with little American flags.

Both Dan Rattiner of Dan's Papers and Party Promoter Linda Shapiro, the hosts of this event, spoke. Linda said that she was prompted to do this event when she saw on TV the image of Shoshana Johnson, who was at that moment a prisoner of war in Iraq. What she didn't know was that at the moment she said this, American soldiers were liberating Pfc. Johnson, along with six others from a safe house just south of Baghdad where they were being held. The next day, Linda said she thought her mention of Pfc. Johnson and the rescue of her were somehow locked together in time.

Two sets of parents were there who have sons in Iraq. Nancy and Alan Repp of Westhampton have a 22 year old son there. Joanne Rogers of Remsenberg has two sons, 18 and 22, both in Iraq.

Everything at this community event was donated. This included the Star Room itself, for which we thank Scott Gray and Scott Storbo. We thank the East Hampton Town Police, Cynthia Sestito who coordinated the food with her assistant Denise, and for food and beverages the Mardi Gras, Sen, Schmidt's, American Bistro, Gurney's Inn, Bobby Van's, Santa Fe, Blue Duck Bakery, Blue Parrot, Saracen and Golden Pear. We also want to thank the soldiers and veterans of other wars who came in uniform to salute the young men fighting today.

All together, it was a very moving event. There should be more of them, as often as possible, here in this community, to show our support for our men fighting abroad for our freedom.

13th Annual Windows on Long Island Wine: Monday, April 28

It's true. Time flies. Could this really be the 30th anniversary of the founding of the Long Island wine region? In 1973, Alex and Louisa Hargrave planted the area's first vinifera vines and the rest, as they say, is history. Today, the Long Island Wine Council has nearly thirty members, comprised of vineyards, wineries and estates, and that is indeed something to celebrate.

On Monday, April 28, Terence Conran's beautiful Guastavino's Restaurant, located among the enormous granite pillars of the Queensboro Bridge on 59th Street where a cocktail called the "flirtini" was created especially for Sex and the City's Sarah Jessica Parker, will host the Council's 13th Annual Windows on Long Island Wine. This is a spectacular fundraising event, benefiting the Earth Pledge Foundation, a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting sustainable agriculture. It is a celebration of Long Island wines from 25 Long Island wineries accompanied by culinary delights from more than 20 top Long Island and New York City restaurants.

The event attracts hundreds of philanthropic food and wine lovers from the New York metropolitan area. There will be a VIP Reception from 5-7 p.m. hosted by Tom Matthews, executive editor of the Wine Spectator, and wine guru Kevin Zraly, director of the Windows on the World Wine School. A Grand Tasting follows from 7-9 p.m. This is a very popular event, so plan early to avoid disappointment. Cost: VIP $250, Grand Tasting $125 ($150 at the door). Call 212-725-6611 ext. 234.

Martha Clara Vineyards Awarded Nine Medals

Fresh from their win at the First Annual East End Food and Wine Awards hosted by Tierra Mar restaurant of Westhampton Beach on April 6, Martha Clara Vineyards announces their summer lineup.

The yet to be released 2000 Cabernet Sauvignon

Merlot grapes at Martha Clara and Estate Reserve Syrah, which both took bronzes, will be available in time for Memorial Day. As the award winning 2001 whites are nearly sold out, which included silver for the 2001 Viognier, customers can look forward to the release of the 2002 whites including Riesling, Gewurztraminer, Sauvignon Blanc and Viognier just in time for the summer season. A crisp and refreshing Pinot Grigio will also make its debut this year. People interested in learning more about these unusual varietals may wish to attend the vineyard's "First Annual Anything But Merlot and Chardonnay Festival," to be held July 19, which will include offerings from over a dozen Long Island vineyards.

The gold medal-winning Ciel Dessert Wine and silver medal winning non-vintage Brut Sparkling Wine were made by newly named Head Winemaker Gilles Martin and are currently available for sale in the tasting room. Call 298-0075 or visit their website: www.marthaclaravineyards.com.

Peconic Bay Winery Goes For The Gold

PBW's newly introduced Steel Fermented Chardonnay was awarded a Gold Medal at the 3rd Annual Finger Lakes Wine Competition held on March 29 & 30. The competition includes commercial wines from the U.S., Canada, and virtually all wine producing nations. With 157 chardonnays entered in the competition, only nine received double gold or gold honors. Peconic Bay Winery's steel fermented Chardonnay was the only Long Island chardonnay to receive a gold medal. The competition generates proceeds which support Camp Good Days and Special Times, Inc., a camp for children with cancer.

Winemaker Greg Gove produced the wine. It is his 55th medal! earned since being hired shortly after Ursula and Paul Lowerre acquired the winery in 1999. Thirty international judges including writers, sommeliers, educators, winemakers, importers, retailers and industry consultants presided over the competition. Peconic Bay Winery entered three wines, 2001 Steel Fermented Chardonnay, 2001 Riesling and 2000 Cabernet Franc, all of which received medals.

Wines can be purchased on-line at www.peconicbay-winery.com or by calling 734-7361.

Honoring Our Past: Of Shelter Island Names

Sylvester, Havens, Dering, Mashomack, Gardiner, Preston, Chequit, L'Hommedieu, Fiske

Old Shelter Island Windmill

By Susan Whitney Simm

Nathaniel Sylvester, as the plaques that line Route 114, Shelter Island's main thoroughfare, indicate, is credited with founding that place in 1652. But he was not the first white man to visit the island. James Farrett, an agent for the Earl of Stirling, who had received huge land grants in America from King James I, claimed the island as his back in 1638, naming it "Mr. Farrett's Island." This was short lived. Farrett sold the island to Stephen Goodyear of New Haven, Connecticut, who promptly renamed it "Mr. Goodyear's Island." And so it remained for a decade.

It was not until 1651 that Nathaniel Sylvester, along with three other European merchants active in the Barbados sugar trade, became the 8,000-acre island's new owner. Although history shows that the island was sold to the men by Goodyear, other documents exist confirming the transfer of the deed by the Manhasset Indians on December 27, 1652, in which the island is referred to as "Ahaquatamok," or "Island sheltered by islands," hence the present name. Under the merchants' ownership, the island became a supply plantation – barrels to hold sugar were made from the native white oaks – for the owners' Barbados holdings, and was worked by slaves.

Nathaniel, along with his 16-year-old bride Grissel Brinley, was a wealthy royalist who had fled Cromwell's England as a religious refugee. They built a big manor house a few feet from where their ancestor's manor stands today. They also became known for harboring New England Quakers at a time when it was very dangerous to do so. But the pioneering couple, who had 11 children, flourished on their island homestead and, by 1673, Nathaniel had become the island's sole owner.

Goat Hill Country Clubhouse, The Heights, circa early 1900s

When Nathaniel died in 1680, the island was divided among his five sons, two of whom would eventually own it together. In 1695, Giles Sylvester sold one-quarter of the island, today Mashomack Preserve, to William Nicoll, who owned over 90,000

ing the Revolutionary War in 1776. (The exclusive Village of Dering Harbor is named for Thomas Dering. While it may be the smallest village in New York State, it is by no means the poorest.)

In 1820, Squire Frederick Chase became the supervisor of Shelter Island Town. Chase owned land that was then called The Prospect, today The Heights. He had visions of great development there, but it was not until the height of the Victorian era, the late 1800s, when that dream would be realized.

While Chase was supervisor, Samuel Gardiner (of the Gardiner's Island Gardiners), married Mary Catherine L'Hommedieu, a descendent of Nathaniel Sylvester's, who had inherited the manor house and grounds. Gardiner, who was a lawyer, was evidently a real showman as people reportedly came from all over to hear him litigate at the County Court in Riverhead.

The railroad came to Greenport in 1844. And in 1853, Jonathan Preston started a regular ferry service between Dering Harbor and Greenport. It would just be a matter of time, less than twenty years, before the rural face of Shelter Island changed.

In 1870, there were still over 70 farms on the island with over 7,000 acres under cultivation. By 1930, less than 30 farms remained totaling less than 2,000 acres.

A group of investors from Brooklyn got together in 1871 and built The Prospect, a summer resort with a hotel, restaurant (today the Chequit Inn) and a bathing pavilion down at the shore. The acres in what is today Islip and who would become Shelter Island's first supervisor in 1730. In 1700, Nathaniel II sold 1,000 acres in the middle of the island to George Havens of Newport, whose family would play a big roll in local government for the next two centuries.

The boys got the land, but Mary Sylvester, Nathaniel's daughter, got Sylvester Manor and its surrounding property. She married Thomas Dering, a merchant from Boston who later became a delegate to the Third Provisional Congress dur-

Names (continued from page 43)

Heights began a transformation into what it is today: tall Victorian Gothic houses adorned with gingerbread, a private community tennis court, and a yacht club that was founded in 1886.

Two weeks after the incorporation of the S.I.Y.C., eleven yachts from the American Yacht Club embarked on the Third Annual Regatta to New London and Shelter Island. It was a major social and nautical event, attended by financier Jay Gould. The New York Herald followed the cruise with many columns of copy.

Soon after the building of The Prospect, a group of Boston investors followed suit and built what would become the wildly successful Manhasset House across Dering Harbor, and a friendly rivalry was born. Shelter Island became a summer destination overnight, not only for yachtsmen, but for other wealthy New Yorkers as well who took the train out to Greenport along with everything needed – including servants – for a summer's stay.

The Manhasset burned down in 1896, just after the opening of a 9-hole golf course, the third in the country, and was replaced. But after burning again in 1910, it was never rebuilt. Still, summer visitors continued to make Shelter Island a destination, coming instead to private homes that replaced the grand hotels. "Cottages," the big, rambling Hampton variety, sprang up in Dering Harbor, Ram Island, South Ferry Hills and Silver Beach.

During the Roaring Twenties, two camps were built on the island, Camp Qunipet (still at the end of Crescent Beach Road) and Dr. Pettit's Camps. About this time, the 2,000-acre property owned and farmed by the Nicoll family since its sale to William Nicoll by Giles Sylvester back in 1700, was sold to Otto Kahn, the German-born financier and man-about-town Wall Street wizard (he was a partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co., a New York investment bank second only to Morgan). The land then passed to the Gerard Family who, though approached by developers in the 1970s, sold it to the Nature Conservancy. Incredibly, nearly half the money for the purchase reportedly came from donations made by Shelter Islanders.

During the Depression, many second homes were abandoned. But the list of islanders who served in WWII is long. They are commemorated on a plaque in front of the Legion Hall.

By the 1950s, the few remaining farmers formed a co-op to grow and process lima beans for Libby Foods. But in 1955, after hurricanes destroyed the crop for the second year in a row, farming, for all intents and purposes, ended.

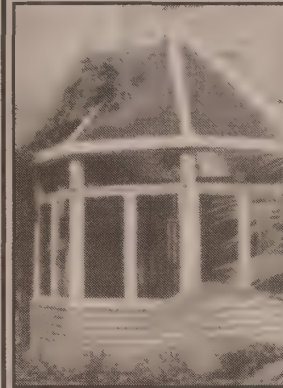

Shelter Island regained popularity as a resort destination as the country prospered during the 50s and 60s and in 1993, The Heights was designated as a National Historic District.

Alice Fiske, who lives in the manor house today, is Nathaniel Sylvester's last direct descendant. And during the second half of the last century, the population of the island doubled, causing alarm among some residents.

But Shelter Island has one great advantage shared by all islands. It is surrounded by water. There are no bridges, and the ferries stop running at some point every night. And if all the residents of this peaceful place have their way, these things will never change.

Shop 'til You Drop....With Maria Tennariello

I finally planted my lilac bush on Sunday, the first nice day we had after the tons of rain that was dumped on the East End. Let's hope that the weather stays warmer than it has been. Let's do some savvy shopping...

Eric Shoes of Southampton on Main Street, is still saying goodbye and everything must fly out the door. All their winter merchandise is $30. Now that's a deal and a half. Look for their new spring shoes that are now 30% off. Open every day, there are no excuses...

A reminder that Christopher Fischer on Jobs Lane in Southampton and Main Street in East Hampton is having an up to 70% of ladies, men's, home and furniture sale that will end on Monday April 21...Get going!

Bernadette O'Brien Fabrics & Interiors on Hampton Road in Southampton has opened a new baby and children's section and has everything you need including crib duvets, clothing and gift baskets. Look for beautiful hand-painted furniture, tables and chairs in wonderful colors so that you can mix and match from all in-stock items. Don't forget the fabrics and trims and slipcovers, draperies and upholstery. Also available are feather beds, down comforters and Suprema sheets and duvet covers and down blankets in soft pastels. Yikes, all this under one roof...

Patio.com on Montauk Highway in Southampton is having a spring sale extravaganza... A one stop shop for cushions, Adirondack and beach chairs, outdoor wicker, cast aluminum, wrought iron, teak furniture, umbrellas, benches, grills, the list goes on and on. This is a see for yourself store and they are open seven days a week...

Double Rainbow on Montauk Highway in Watermill is all gussied up for Easter...They are filled to the rafters with toys, plushtoy, unique baskets for "children" of all ages and can customize one for your specific gift giving needs. Joseph Schmidt chocolates, Godiva, Pergina and Truffles are also available. Love this shop!

Topping Greenhouse at Arrowhead Farms in Sagaponack is ready, willing and able to help you choose your potted plants, houseplants, annuals, perennials, herbs and vegetables... Call them at 537-4764.

Don't drive pass Barn Arage on Montauk Highway in Watermill without stopping in and checking out their Easter Sale on all items this week. Also included in this sale are home and office furnishings so look for that special something that will give your space a special touch. Give Stan a call for information at 631-834-6897.

If you're wondering where Bobby Van's, Kiplings and Estia gets that delectious dipping oil for bread, I know the deal! Giglio Olive Oil is extra virgin and made from the highest quality hand picked and selected olives that is first cold pressed with the distinction of D.O.P. level of quality. The roundish olives, hand picked directly from trees before turning dark, in turn guarantee a kind of oil which has a very low acidity. (That's if you want to know about good olive oils...) The origin is Santa Ninfa, Sicily, Italy and is recommended for salads, garlic bread, game dishes, grilled chicken, shellfish and your favorite meats. Giglio Olive Oil can be also purchased at Schmidts East Hampton, Estia Sag Harbor and Robert Schmidts Market Bridgehampton, to name a few. Call Gary Abruzzo for more information at 516-652-7927. I already have it ready for our Easter dinner table...mmmm, mmm good!

Hot off the press, John Brancati, with 32 years of book sales experience is opening East End Books, Gallery & Music at The Circle in East Hampton. East End Books will carry art, lifestyle, interior design and gardening books along with a selection of national bestsellers and world music. The store will also showcase art in its gallery space; the original art will be from books the store carries. Join them for the grand opening n Saturday, May 3, from 4-7 p.m. At the celebrated opening you will meet noted authors from all fields that will sign copies of their books. The inaugural gallery exhibition will feature botanical portraits from Barbara Bordnick's new book Searchings. Need some more info? Call 212-246-2977. Mark you calendars for this event.

How 'bout this sale? "Business Stinks Sale" at Pura Vida (next to Supercia) in Sag Harbor...Clearance racks include lines like DDC, Lab, Solow, ABS, Red Engine, Elecric Barbarella at $20, $30 and $50...Pura Vida is making room for their fabulously, funky fashion forward spring lines. Gotta get there!

Sag Harbor's Unlimited Earth Care is celebrating their tenth anniversary. Check with them for good landscape design, installation, maintenance, lawn care, transplanting, floral gardens, hedges, pruning and organic products. Call 725-7551 for information.

I would like to wish all my readers a very healthy, happy Easter and Passover.

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Shopping!

If you know of any sales and would like to share them with me, or have any questions regarding the shops or sales, please email me at shoptil@danspapers.com or fax me at: 631-537-3330.

Yankee

There is nothing like the sport of baseball. It requires strategy, concentration and athleticism. It is a sport where families can go to the ballpark and relax. It is a sport where diehard fans can get together and go crazy rooting for the home team. I love baseball.

Over the weekend a couple of buddies of mine from New York – Yankees fans, of course – headed down to the Bronx in order to catch the Yankees-Tampa Bay game. I don't know if you remember the weekend but it was very strange. The weather was horrible in the morning on Saturday, cold enough to make you complain and the rain was coming down like pellets. We thought the game was going to be cancelled and rescheduled. But then, as if the heavens would not allow this to happen, the clouds parted and let the beautiful sunshine come through just in time for the National Anthem.

I don't know how to describe the feeling that I get from baseball but it is a feeling that I do not get from any other sport. There is something in your soul that makes you want to like baseball and appreciate it for the wonderful game that it is. I have heard a million times from people that they think it is boring to watch, but I know that somewhere deep down in their hearts they see the greatness in it.

I can't say for myself that I am a diehard fan and I can't say that I play the game all that well, but I can say that I like it and get what it is all about. I think that baseball is really a part every American's life in one way or another. Even if you hate the game, it puts a smile on your face when you see the little leaguers practicing on the fields in the springtime. Or when they're celebrating a victory after a game by getting some ice cream at either Snow Flake in Amagansett or John's Drive Inn in Montauk.

There is a mystique behind baseball that is fascinating to me. I don't know if it is because of the cool baseball caps or if it's that "crack" sound that a bat makes when it hits a ball on the sweet. There is definitely something about it. I'm trying to figure out what that something is exactly as I write this, but I can't put my finger on it.

There is the dream that every young boy has, to grow up one day and become a professional baseball player. That is part of it. I can remember being a kid and thinking about how awesome it would be to actually get paid to play baseball. You can see this dream in young kids' eyes while they are watching the game at Yankees Stadium.

They go to the stadium with a glove and hat hoping to catch a foul ball. They know all of the players' names and their numbers. Each one is there with their dad, who is equally as interested in the game as them. I'd say that this is part of the stuff that makes baseball so wonderful.

There is more to it than that though. It doesn't even have to involve kids. For example, when I was at Yankees Stadium on Saturday a group of middle aged Yankee fans were sitting right in front of us. There were four of these guys. It was a classic group of Yankee fans. All of them had the caps and the jackets and the New York accents. Every time the umpire made a call against one of the Yankees they would jump out of their seats yelling and screaming. Each of them must have eaten five hot dogs during the game and each of them had a comment every time a Yankee player came up to bat. "Matsui's up Sammy. This guy is so relaxed in the box. You see that? This guy can hit though let me tell ya. When he just bears down on the ball you can tell he's gonna hit it. Sammy ya see what I'm seeing? Look ya see?"

"I'd see better if ya shut your pie hole and let me watch the game."

This is the stuff that I'm talking about.

JAGUAR
Southampton, SOUTHAMPTON
presents

"Spindletop's The Nerd is a tight and bright evening of amusing craziness...a solid and satisfying rendition of this comedy, finely acted, energetically directed and altogether captivating."

Lee Davis, Southampton Press

"That such a finished performance comes to us now, at a time when we are preoccupied with the news, turns out to be a generous gift from Spindletop Productions, the cast of The Nerd and the able crew."

Suzanne McNear, East Hampton Star

"The comic timing is flawless as well as the perfectly twisted ending in this 80's flashback... Bring the whole family to The Nerd."

Guy de Fraumeni's Hollywood in The Hamptons

Hello? Hello! HELLO! Ever aggravating Ma Bell costars with Colin Farrell and she's even more of a grasping, noodling, pain-in-the-behind-of-a-mom than ever, as Farrell is stuck under her roof. Hence, the film's title, Phone Booth. It is a miniature Dog Day Afternoon. It has to be small to fit in a phone booth. It's like Al Pacino shoehorned into a doghouse. It's a gimmick movie that asks us to feel sorely for publicist, Farrell, with a revved up, motor boat mouth that blurs gossip. He was plying his sleazy trade in the booth, giving the N.Y. Post a cheesy item for Page Six, then schmoozing with his girlfriend/client, then when he hangs up – R-R-ring goes the phone! He answers. An oily voice pours into his ear, a combative, challenging diatribe that ends with a terse, "If you hang up, I'll kill you." The caller has a rifle trained on him. This pushes into motion, cameras that reel, spin, twirl, bump and grind, as desperately as Bobby Duvall doing his Assassination Tango. The director will not have the audience feeling phone booth bound.

Colin Farrell is a sturdy performer. He may be trapped in the windowed box by a sniper, but he's far from tongue-tied, muscle-bound or at a loss for a broad acting range at the target-end of a rifle range. Phone Booth was shot (with cameras) before the number of dynamite films he has done since. (Phone Booth was shelved because of the Washington D.C. killings.) In all, he has built a solid career and Phone Booth will capitalize on it – like getting a quarter left by the previous caller. Mr. Farrell need not be ashamed of this movie's performance. He didn't phone it in.

The voice of the stalking sniper is played theatrically by Kiefer Sutherland. With demonic fervor, he plays God, trying to get Colin down on his knees. As it is, he manages to get NYC up in tattooed arms and in a media carnival frenzy. Hello? Hello? (Clunk) Please deposit another fifty-five cents.

Colin Farrell is a kid, a terrific kid and, compared to Nick Nolte, we would have to call Nolte venerable at 62. Nick's face presents the façade of erosive, hard living and this would have to include his film work which does not come "easy" to him, either. Sometimes, there is a nobility of deterioration, such as a 400-year-old structure in France. Nolte's latest job of work, The Good Thief, takes him to Nice. Nice, as in the south of France. Not nice. And not mean. More like mousy. It is too romantically directed by Neil Jordan (the flinty director of The Crying Game) to make the rats in the film toothy.

Nolte's lined face fills in the lines of the filmy remake of the 1955 French heist thriller, Bob le Flambeur by Jean-Pierre Melville. Mr. Jordan has fogged the underworld of Nolte's Bob with so much atmosphere it gets the soggy impactless quality of those Vaseline-smeared lens scenes accompanied by Burt Bacharach music. The feathery lines given Nolte are just too existentially self-conscious. You can see his professional, ravaged furrows twitch as he engages the role of an American gambler and burglar in France. His heroin addiction is understood. (Bob, the role character, not necessarily the actor.) Bob's gallant nature has made him take a young Russian girl under his powdery wing. He endures a little hell to kick the habit to help her and, I guess, himself. He will do one last score. Steal 20 fabulous paintings from a Monte Carlo casino by pretending to steal their money. It sounds intriguing but zut-alors, it's no Ocean's Eleven.

The Good Thief is too good. It skirts reality. Would Nick never think of getting under the Russian girl's skirt? Nutsa (yes, Nutsa) Kukhianidze, is the big-eyed, sexy 'il girl with a definite attitude. The film gives us all her attitude and no consummation. It is chaste beyond belief. Nowhere. Luckily, the road map routes in Nolte's face and demeanor take us to the far away places of real, earthy destinations we have been before but enjoy revisiting. If you can't get through, try dialing operator. Hello?

ART COMMENTARY With Marion Wolberg Weiss

THE GREENPORT ART SCENE: RICH FIEDLER GALLERY

Last year, Greenport was bursting at the seams; tourists had finally discovered what local residents knew all along. The Northshore is a charming alternative to the Hamptons: near New York, less expensive and crowded and possessing the same beautiful scenery. Almost.

More art galleries existed than ever before. Of course, there were the established venues, like The Yellow House and Island Artists, but there were some interesting newcomers as well, showing well-known regional and international artists, like Whitney Art Works.

And there was the annual exhibition of public art sites, a welcomed addition to Greenport's growing cultural scene. Monthly open houses were also developed by local gallery owners who banded together to form an official organization.

From all appearances, art was prospering in Greenport. But that was last summer. A recent visit revealed that things had indeed changed. Gone from the scene were the long established Yellow House and Island Artists (it is now an antique store). A new gallery, Art Sites, had also pulled up stakes.

Rich Fiedler is holding fast, however. His Fiedler Gallery, which he started with photographer Gary Bartoloni, is a cooperative venue, and while it has not been in business all that long, its co-organizers are long standing fixtures on the local art scene.

There are more artists interested in having space than the gallery can accommodate, according to Mr. Fiedler, yet the sixteen artists who are there provide stylistic diversity and a more than competent grasp of subject matter and technique. The co-op concept may very well be what Greenport needs. It's an option that the East End should perhaps consider as well.

Addressing diversity, we can start with Mr. Fiedler's objective style, celebrating local beach objects like stones. These stones are seen in both close-ups and long shots, thus evoking a varied perspective. Gordon Inyard's equally realistic, effective depictions of local restaurants and gas stations recall favorite subjects used by many photorealists.

Jada Rowland's dolls convey a more subtle realism, summoning memories of the past in a romantic manner. Judie Lizewski's watercolors are similarly romantic and subtle. Keeping with the notion of variety, Antoinette Janecke's pastel landscapes add an arresting note to the display upstairs.

Finally, Michael Cody's photographs combine nostalgia, Realism and Expressionism to signify the diversity present at the Fiedler Gallery.

The Fiedler Gallery is at 207 Main Street, Greenport, New York (tel: 631-477-4242)

CRITIC'S CHOICE: Photographers East Exhibit, Ashawagh Hall, April 18 - 20.

HONORING THE ARTIST: PAM TOPHAM

Tapestry artist Pam Topham is not one to sit home and create images from her studio window. Not that she isn't always on the look out for arresting local landscapes. She's the kind of artist who discovers what has already been discovered and gives it a new "twist" with her weaving expertise.

Take, for example, this week's cover, a subtle yet evocative tapestry featuring the nearby Napeague terrain. Yet Ms. Topham's work is not a documentation. It represents, instead, her reflections after she has walked through the area, getting a real feel for the setting and particularly the "walking dunes."

Recently, Ms. Topham says she visited the Wolfer Estate Vineyards where she also enjoyed getting the lay of the land. She is currently working on a piece featuring another local scene, Fresh Pond.

This method of actually experiencing her subject matter is one of Ms. Topham's greatest strengths. But it's not reserved for the local environs alone. Her love of nature has led to many camping trips, especially to the national parks. More importantly, such sojourns have accounted for some fine series, including the likes of Yellowstone and Canyon de Chelly.

We wonder where this inspiration comes from, both Ms. Topham's art form and her penchant for nature. "I studied painting at Syracuse University," she explains. "But it wasn't until I was visiting Guatemala that I discovered weaving. I was so fascinated by the backstrap looms that the people used and how each village had a different weaving style. It was after that visit that I started to weave myself."

It's apparent that Ms. Topham's experience with illustration and costume design in college has helped inform her weaving. According to the artist, a course at Guild Hall and designing banners for Dan's Papers also accounted for her early foray into weaving.

The act of discovery and experiencing various locales are continuing objectives for Ms. Topham. She is presently planning a camping trip with her nephew, Christopher, to the Channel Islands, California. We can't wait to see the tapestry series that will result.

—Marion Wolberg Weiss

Ms. Topham's work can be seen at New York's McGraw Hill and in July in the show, "America the Beautiful," at East Hampton's Arlene Bujese Gallery; where her work is available at all times.

Woodland Garden

Woodland plants occur in horizontal layers from the sky to the ground, with canopy trees overhead, small trees and shrubs in between, and bulbs, wildflowers, ferns, and mosses on the ground. The ground in the woods has approximately four to six inch deep layers of loose, humus-rich soil consisting of rotted leaves and debris above a more solid soil. This rich, acid soil is the key to growing a great woodland wildflower garden.

A woodland garden can be created in different sites of the garden. Site your proposed woodland garden where overhead trees cast shade throughout the day. This can be in a natural woodland, in a small group of trees, or even under one large tree.

The preparation of the garden consists in clearing out undesirable underbrush, invasive vines, and small saplings. Vines should be taken from the site and not just cut from the bottom. Leave the existing good-looking shrubs in strategic places beneath the canopy trees. Prune off low-hanging branches and open up the canopy by select pruning the trees so that some light falls below. Also, trees will develop larger canopies in this way.

Lay out a path to meander among the trees. The path gives structure to the garden. The path should look very natural. Logs, stones, or mulch can be used to achieve this look. In my opinion, stone paths are the most attractive. They look natural and natural moss grows on top of the stones after some time. At the end of the path, a sitting area can be developed with chairs or benches. Also, the path or sitting area can situate an urn with shade annual flowers, such as colorful begonias, or impatiens combined with English ivy.

Most woodland flowers are spring blooming. The great majority bloom before the overhead canopy of leaves has blocked out significant sunlight. They then die to the ground by midsummer. Spring bloomers are perennials, such as Dicentra (bleeding heart), Galium Odoratum (sweet woodruff), Iris Cristata (crested iris), Phlox Stolonifera (creeping phlox), and bulbs, such as daffodils, crocus, and lily of the valley. I highly recommend including bulbs in the plant selection of woodland gardens. They do very well in these conditions and multiply themselves year after year.

It is important to add a generous amount of ferns to your garden. Their foliage sustains the garden summer and fall. Perennials, such as hostas and astilbes are excellent companions to the ferns. They also add color to the garden during summer and fall. Astilbe has different types and colors. They go from white to purple and in-between you have peach, pink, and red. Chinese astilbe is low to the ground, so you can vary the height and create a path. Plant spreading types so they can roam freely and fill in to become dramatic swathes. Annual flowers, such as impatiens, begonias, lobelia, and pansies add color and grace to the woodland garden during the seasons. They should be planted in masses for statement of texture and color.

Arrange perennial and annual flowers, bulbs and ferns in groups under the trees and along the path edges, but don't set them out in rows. Take ideas from nature and don't worry about leaving open spaces between the groups. When designing a woodland garden, plant large masses of individual flowers and place strategically some shrubs. Try to imitate nature to get the most natural look.

The Importance Of Aeration For A Healthy Lawn

Many homeowners are quite proud of their well-kept lawns. To some a lawn is an attractive backdrop for a home landscape. Others may view a lawn as an outdoor living and entertaining area. Homeowners who know about property values realize that a well cared for lawn can increase the value of their property by up to fifteen percent. The simple translation: green on your lawn means more green in your pocket. Whatever the function, a healthy lawn possesses a certain charm.

It is important to remember that a beautiful, lush, healthy lawns begin at the roots. Lawns often become compacted from everyday use and actions, such as mowing. Compact soil restricts the ability of air, water, and nutrients to penetrate the soil. Compaction cannot be avoided and when it develops, grass roots become injured due to a lack of moisture and air, elements that ensure normal functioning. In addition, grass roots will not spread and grow. None of this is good for the health of your lawn.

This can be reversed through the process of aeration. Aerators remove cores of soil, which allow the soil to expand. Making room for air, water and fertilizer to pass freely to the roots.

The benefits of aerating the soil are numerous and include:

Helping to prevent thatching

Improving drying of wet soil or wetting of dry soil
Improving the grass's response to air, water, & fertilizer

Stimulating root growth within area of hole

Increasing shoot growth along top area of hole

The best time for heavy aeration is in the spring, prior to fertilization and/or overseeding. By allowing the aeration holes to remain open, freezing and thawing of moisture in the holes will improve the effectiveness of aeration.

Equipment having solid tines or spikes should not be mistaken for aerating equipment. Aerators always remove a soil core, whereas solid tine spikes do not. Spikes actually increase soil compaction as the movement of the soil to all sides by the penetration of the solid tine forces the soil into a denser mass.

The technique of aeration and machinery needed to achieve it are known, owned and operated by the Visionary Landscapes. With their assistance, you will have the lawn you always wanted. For free estimate call 631 728-5302.

About Face.....with Annette

Basket Stuffers for Easter

I am so glad the days of buying Easter baskets loaded with candy are now behind me. I can't remember the last time I did one of them. The last few years have been cute little wire baskets with beads entwined in them that have been recycled for under the powder room storage cabinets. Even now, as you go shopping, you will see "theme" baskets - basketballs, water bottles, wristbands for boys and never ending Barbie, Lizzie McGuire and the Olson twins paraphernalia. Kind of a neat twist.

But hey, no sense in stopping there for us women. Although we don't want the candy - ok maybe a little piece or two, of maybe some Godiva - we love makeup, perfume and gift certificates in a neat little basket. Even some innovative gadgets from a good culinary shop - small stuff.

Getting more for your money in the department stores lately has made shopping easier. Macy's has a great package from Lancome. With any $25 or more you can try some of their new creams like Resolution D-Contraxol. You can choose your color preference, The Romantics or The Sophisticates, featuring Maquiriche Eye Colour Quartet and a full-size Rouge Absolu Creme Lip Colour. Plus Definicils mascara, Gel Clarte Cleanser, REnergie Intense Lift Cream, Change and a Signature Cosmetics Case. Lancome offers their first wrinkle treatment with D-Contraxol to target dermo-creases, lies, I am guessing garden variety wrinkles here, created by daily facial movements that may deepen over time. 1.7oz for $68.

Donna Karan's new Sheer Fragrance Alcohol free Spray sounds like a sweet addition to that basket. Wrap yourself in this warmth of this irresistible limited edition spray. A lighter, fresher version of the original fragrance is just perfect for spring and the upcoming summer months. 3.4 oz Spray $58. Pick this up at Macy's also along with Donna's Cashmere Mist. 1.7 oz. Eau de Toilette Spray and a 3.4oz. Body Lotion in a signature gift box. Perfect. $54.

From Saks Fifth Avenue, Clinique is offering a chic cosmetic bag loaded with the latest with any purchase of $35 or more. The little bag includes, Rinse-off Eye Makeup Solvent; Moisture Surge Extra Thirsty Skin Relief; Eyeshadow Trio in Perfect Couple and Whisper; Long Pretty Lashes Mascara in black; Dramatically Different Moisturizing Lotion; new Advanced Stop Signs: Long Last Soft Shine Lipstick in Pink Spice; Quickliner for Eyes in Roast Coffee; and an Eyeglass Case. I suggest you try for your purchase Clinique's new Repairwear Night Formula which helps to diminish the aging effects of time, stress and environment. 1.0 oz. $45 for the lotion and 1.7 oz. for the cream at $45 as well.

And last but not least Bloomingdale's is getting in on the package deals this week as well. From today (Sunday 4/13) through May 19th., a tanning expert will be available at the Estee Lauder counter to show you the way to glow for this summer. New Go Tan Sunless Towelettes and bronzing products from the New Amber Bronze Collection are there for the asking. Plus, receive a free state of the art airbrush application for a sultry sun drenched new look. Whatcha waiting for? Get glowing! Get your free Estee Lauder gift set with a $22.50 purchase or more, this is valued at over $60. This is the last week to grab this at Bloominie's, so hurry in. Your choice of lip and eye shades. Pure Color Long Lasting Lipstick (full size) or All-Day Lipstick, full size as well. Color Intensity Duo Microfine powder Eyeshadow. Your seven piece gift includes. Illusionist Maximum Curling Mascara new Perfectionist Correcting Serum for Lines/Wrinkles; new Resilience Lift Overnight Face and Throat Creme. Estee lauder Pleasure Body Lotion and a great Demim shoulder bag. To order, call the counter or 1-800-555-shop #R975...better hurry on this one.

Happy Easter!

Naturopathic Medicine 101

Most people haven't heard of naturopathic medicine, especially in New York. That may not be surprising, considering that New York does not currently offer licensure to doctors of naturopathic medicine. Ironically, the first school of naturopathy in the United States was founded in New York City, and graduated its first class in 1902. Since then, many time-tested healing traditions have been pushed aside in favor of drugs and surgery. Now naturopathic medicine is regaining popularity as people demand disease prevention and holistic health care.

A Different Kind Of Doctor

Doctors of Naturopathic Medicine, or NDs, are general practitioners trained as experts in natural therapies. Patients of all ages consult with NDs for prevention, diagnosis and treatment of almost all acute and chronic conditions. These include allergies, depression, anxiety, weight loss, diabetes, arthritis, respiratory infections, menstrual problems, menopausal symptoms and digestive disorders.

What makes naturopathic doctors different from conventional doctors is their approach to patient care. They typically spend an hour or more with new patients during initial consultations, investigating the underlying cause of illness and promoting wellness in body and mind, rather than focusing solely on symptomatic treatment. They educate their patients about their health and encourage self-responsibility in healing. Using the least invasive treatments to minimize side effects, NDs typically recommend natural therapeutics such as nutrition, botanical (herbal) medicine, counseling, homeopathy and exercise therapy. For example, as an alternative to hormone replacement therapy for managing menopausal symptoms, NDs may prescribe dietary modifications, exercise and botanicals like Cimicifuga racemosa (Black Cohosh).

Licensed doctors of naturopathic medicine can write prescriptions when necessary and perform minor surgery and IV therapy. Those with additional training may offer acupuncture, oriental medicine and natural childbirth. NDs work in cooperation with all branches of medicine to provide the best patient care. When illnesses require pharmacological and/or surgical intervention by a conventional physician, naturopathic medicine can offer recommendations to decrease adverse effects and speed recovery time.

Education and Licensing

Licensed doctors of naturopathic medicine attend a four-year, graduate-level naturopathic medical school. These schools have admission requirements and coursework comparable to those of conventional medical schools, including standard medical curriculum and two years of internship. Additionally, NDs are extensively trained in natural therapeutics. There are three accredited naturopathic medical schools (and one that has been granted candidacy status) in the United States and one in Canada. The Council on Naturopathic Medical Education is the only accrediting body recognized by the United States Department of Education.

Twelve states currently license naturopathic doctors, including nearby Connecticut, Vermont, Maine and New Hampshire. Licensure requires NDs to graduate from an accredited school and pass national board exams. They are also subject to review by a State Board of Examiners. Insurance companies in these states commonly cover naturopathic care because it reduces the incidence of chronic conditions and decreases health care costs.

Why not New York?

Just across the border, Connecticut licenses NDs and is working on legislation that would require insurance coverage of naturopathic care. In the state of New York, active pro-licensing efforts are ongoing. This is important to health care consumers because licensure would distinguish properly trained doctors of naturopathic medicine from lesser-trained individuals who may present a danger to the public. To get information about pro-licensure efforts, contact the New York Association of Naturopathic Physicians at www.nyanp.org.

You can support NDs in New York by joining the NYANP as a supporting member and making a small contribution. You can also tell your legislator that you want licensure for doctors of naturopathic medicine in New York. The NYANP website has links to the names of your senators as well as their biographies and contact information.

Dr. Sarah Cimperman is a board certified Doctor of Naturopathic Medicine, in private practice in Manhattan and Sag Harbor, New York. For more information, call 212-696-7852 or visit www.dr.sarahcimperman.com.

What Happens When Legs Meet Eggs?

The brand-name "L'eggs" is a clever combination of the words legs and eggs, with an apostrophe added to make the wordplay idiot-proof.

At the 1939 World's Fair, Dupont introduced nylon stockings to the world. On May 15, 1940, they were available in stores. Nineteen years later, Glen Raven Mills of North Carolina introduced panty hose, eventually developing a seamless model just in time for the advent of the miniskirt in 1965.

In 1970, Hanes creatively packaged panty hose in plastic eggs in supermarkets, drugstores, and convenience stores—places where they had never been available before. Sheer Energy was introduced in 1973 as the first L'eggs panty hose made with sheer spandex yarn.

In 1991, L'eggs replaced the plastic egg with a cardboard package to reduce waste. While the plastic eggs were recyclable and used for arts-and-crafts projects, the new box, using 38 percent less material and made from recycled paper, allows 33 percent more containers to fit into the store-display rack and is still rounded at the top like an egg.

In the 1970s, when Peter Lynch, the most successful money manager in America, noticed his wife Carolyn bringing L'eggs panty hose home from the supermarket, his Fidelity Magellan fund bought stock in Hanes. The value of its shares rose nearly 600 percent.

L'eggs supported the women of the 1994 and 1996 United States Olympic Teams.

L'eggs is the best-selling panty hose in America.

97 percent of all supermarkets, drugstores, and convenience stores in the United States carry L'eggs panty hose.

Silvia Lehrer's Cooking Column

Traditions abound for the holidays in general but often the season dictates the foods to be eaten. After months of extreme wintry weather and battered hatches we welcome the first foods of the season with young spring lamb, asparagus, baby artichokes and fava beans. Just as the solemn, yet festive holiday of Easter, spring is a season of second chances and the season's ingredients signal renewal and change.

I simply adore garlicky roasted lamb, asparagus in a variety of ways; artichokes pared down to the tender heart and sweet buttery fava beans. Agnello al ramerino roasted with a seasoning of garlic, rosemary and pancetta suggests young spring lamb, probably the most celebratory food on the Easter table. Complete the festive meal with ricotta amaretto cheesecake. The ingredients make it particularly appropriate for an Italian Easter.

Whatever food traditions you plan to follow for the holiday contribute to that tradition and have a happy and delectable Easter.

AGNELLO AL RAMERINO

Leg of lamb with rosemary

- 1 leg of spring lamb (about 6-7 pounds)
- 4-5 ounces pancetta, thinly sliced
- 4 cloves garlic, peeled
- 1-2 tablespoons fresh rosemary
- Salt and freshly ground pepper
- 3/4 cup olive oil
- 2 cups dry white wine
- 1 cup chicken broth

1. If bottom part of the leg is not removed, have butcher remove it if it is still attached.

2. Coarsely chop pancetta and set aside. Coarsely chop garlic and rosemary and put them into a small bowl. Add half the pancetta, salt and pepper and toss thoroughly to coat the garlic.

3. Using a paring knife, make several small incisions all around the meaty part of the leg. Push a small amount of the garlic mixture into each slit.

4. Place the oil with the remaining pancetta in a flameproof covered casserole over moderate heat. When the oil is warm, add the lamb and saute all over until lightly golden. Add 1 cup of wine, cover and let cook for 15 minutes. Then add the remaining wine, taste for salt and pepper and cook, covered, adding the broth as needed until cooked, about 15-20 minutes. Instant read on thermometer about 135 degrees. Transfer meat to a serving dish and cover lightly with aluminum foil to keep warm. Let rest for 10 minutes.

5. Transfer remaining juices to a small saucepan and reduce for about 10 minutes. Slice and serve with hot sauce.

AMARETTO-CHOCOLATE CHEESECAKE

The key to success here is to bake the cake for one hour, then turn off the oven and allow the cake to cool down slowly so it doesn't dry up or crack.

Cake can be prepared up to one day ahead.

Serves 8-10

- 1 cup graham cracker crumbs
- 4 egg yolks
- 3/4 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 pounds ricotta cheese

- 1/4 cup sour cream
- 1/4 cup Amaretto
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 3 egg whites, whipped until stiff peaks form
- 1/3 cup chocolate chips

Preheat oven to 350 degrees

1. Butter the bottom of an 8-inch springform pan and line with the graham crackers. Make sure to press the mixture evenly over the bottom and about an inch up the sides.

2. In a large bowl mix the egg yolks, vanilla and sugar with a whisk or a wooden spoon until well incorporated. (Use a food processor for this step if available.) Remove to a large bowl. Blend in the ricotta, sour cream, and Amaretto. With a large rubber spatula, fold in the flour, then the whipped cream. Fold in the beaten egg whites and mix in the chocolate chips. Pour into the prepared pan.

3. Place a large pan in the oven with about 1-inch of water in it and set the springform pan inside. Bake for 1 hour. After 1 hour, turn the oven off and allow the cheesecake to cool in the oven for about 1 hour before removing. Continue the cooling process by allowing the cake to come to room temperature on the counter, then put it in the refrigerator for several hours or overnight before serving.

Dining In The Hamptons

Chocolate-Dipped Fruit: Heaven On Earth

Chocolate, did somebody say chocolate? It is the universal feel-good food and when paired with fruit, the duo is unbeatable. Store bought goodies are fine but these sweets are easy enough to whip up in the comfort of your own kitchen – and they taste better, too!

Strawberries are the most common choice, but why not dip bananas, pineapple chunks, blueberries, pitted cherries, raspberries or even papaya and mango? Dried fruit is a great all year-round alternative. Some favorites are apricots, cranberries and raisins. Experiment with the multitude of chocolates like white, dark and milk chocolate. For an old stand-by, try Nestles, or go gourmet and indulge in a Toblerone bar studded with nuts. Any combination or idea you can dream up is fair game. You may think you have created the end-all and be-all in chocolate-dipped fruit, but think again! Every combination is better than the next! That is the beauty of chocolate. The only limit is your imagination, so go ahead, indulge and create.

What's the most popular item on a Viennese-style dessert table? Chocolate-dipped strawberries, of course! You don't need to go to a fancy affair to enjoy this easy summer-time treat. Melt the chocolate morsels, but do not boil! Driscoll strawberries are the best to use since they are plump, sweet and the largest of the variety. Just rinse, pat them dry and be sure to leave on their beautiful long stems and greens as you dip and swirl them in the hot chocolate. Set them on wax paper and allow to cool in the refrigerator. (Note: all fresh-dipped fruit should be refrigerated and eaten within two or three days. Substitute any other fresh fruit for this recipe.)

Want to chill out with a refreshing and (some-what) healthy fresh fruit treat? Try a hand-dipped frozen banana and you'll never be the same again! This recipe works best with milk or dark chocolate. Melt the chocolate, dip peeled whole banana on a Popsicle stick, roll in multi-colored or chocolate sprinkles and place on wax paper in the freezer. When the banana is hard put the individual Popsicle into a freezer bag to store. Enjoy!

Want to feel like a kid again? This is the grown-up version of the candy apple. Select the apple of your choice and insert stick firmly. Dip first in melted caramel and let harden on wax paper. Next, submerge it in melted chocolate. For you nut lovers, roll in a tray of your favorite chopped nuts while the chocolate is still wet. (I like hazelnuts, almonds, peanuts or even a combination.)

If eating dried fruit is a boring prospect for you then this truffle should change your mind. Mix up an assortment of chopped dried fruit. Then, using the palms of your hands roll the mixture into approximately one-inch balls. Using a slotted spoon dip the balls into melted chocolate and set on wax paper in the refrigerator. Voila – a dried fruit truffle!

A great accompaniment to all the aforementioned goodies is a chocolate-dipped cookie. There is no such thing as a bad chocolate-dipped Oreo! For those with a more sophisticated palate, gourmet shortbread cookies or vanilla wafers work just as well. All you need now is an iced latte or a tall glass of milk. Ditch the napkin; you'll have more fun licking your fingers.

We at Side Dish want to (yet again) remind all our readers of Taste of the Nation. As previously reported the annual charity brunch, organized by Paula Schiff, will take place at Rubi Red in Wainscott on Sunday, April 27 from 1 to 5 p.m. Participants at press time include Almond, Bamboo, Ciao Bella, Hampton Chocolate, Hampton Coffee Company, Hampton Clambake, Harvest, North by Northeast, Old Stone Market, The Laundry, Michael Mosolino Catering, Barefoot Contessa, James Lane Café, Estia, Turtle Crossing, Oasis, Rubi Red, Saracen, Michael's at Maidstone, Schmidts of East Hampton, World Pie, Dairyland and 1770 House, with all paper products donated by Barboy. Ruth Ann Faye and Philip Andruela will provide music for the event, which will also include a silent auction. All funds received will go to local charities Island Harvest and Long Island Cares. Tickets are $40 dollars in advance or $50 if purchased the day of the event so call (631) 324-4181 for info.

Those two hundred or so faithful who attended the first annual East End Food & Wine Awards at Tierra Mar recently were treated to a fabulous evening courtesy of hosts Shari Alexander and John Bills. Here's a brief rundown of who walked away with which awards: Ravenscroft Winemaker of the Year Award went to Roman Roth of Wolffer; HADCO Chef of the Year went to Michael Meehan of The Seafood Barge, and chef Todd Jacobs of Tierra Mar was awarded Humanitarian of the Year, an accolade he richly deserved. Outstanding East End Restaurant went to Nick & Toni's. The Seafood Barge fared very well as you might imagine: they nabbed the top prize for Best East End Wine List; and the gold for Outstanding Signature Dish. They finished just behind Nick & Toni's for Outstanding East End Restaurant. red/bar brasserie placed well too – they were silver award recipients for Outstanding Signature Dish, for Best East End Wine List and the bronze winner for Outstanding East End Restaurant. Kudos to all the rest of the winners and participants. We'll attempt to highlight the finishers in subsequent columns to follow.

Don't forget about "Making a Difference," the latest installment in the Nick & Toni's winter dinner series taking place on April 25. The theme will be "Tuscan Peasant Food," with all five courses to be paired with a specially selected wine. Call for reservations at (631) 324-3550 and keep in mind that the next dinner in the series will take place on May 18.

Looking for a great meal on Easter? Tierra Mar in Westhampton will be serving a special buffet dinner on Easter Sunday, April 20 from 12 to 6 p.m. The cost is $35 per person plus tax and gratuity. There is also a children's menu for $15 per child. Likewise, Della Femina will offer a special three course prix fixe from 3 p.m. until 8 p.m. The price is $39.00 per person. An a la carte and children's menu will be available as well. Also celebrating the holiday, Mary Jane's in East Hampton will offer an Easter brunch from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. for $16.95 per person ($8.95 for kids) or try their $24.95 prix fixe dinner. Served from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m. the Easter special will include three courses including dessert.

East Hampton Point on Three Mile Harbor Road is serving a special holiday brunch on East Sunday from noon to 4 p.m. The menu is unbelievable! The Easter Bunny will be there handing out treats to all the kiddies. Call for info at 329-2800.

The 1770 House restaurant in East Hampton will be serving a special holiday meal on East Sunday from noon to 7 p.m. They offer a four course prix fixe for $45 per person. For info and reservations call 324-1770.

Hamptons Restaurant Week was quite successful for Rubi Red, George Martin, and Mary Jane's. So much so that they will keep the $19.95 three course prix fixe on their menus for the time being. Rubi Red and Mary Jane's will offer the promotion every night, except Saturday when it will be offered during earlier dining hours. George Martin will offer the special every night except weekends and Mondays.

Other events on the horizon include the Suffolk County Community College Culinary Arts Program's Great Chefs Gala. Held at Tierra Mar in Westhampton on May 4, the event has been organized to honor the most innovative chefs and vintners on Long Island. Also coming up, the Ceretto Vineyards Wine Dinner. This five-course prix fix will take place at Oasis in Sag Harbor on May 2. Check this space for more details on both events.

Police Blotter

Employees of the only restaurant in the world that advertises "smiles" on their menu were wearing frowns when they arrived to work last Wednesday. One of the McDonald's team called police to report the vandalism of a sign that had occurred the previous night sometime between midnight and 5 a.m. Police say the vandal caused $1,000 in damage when he/she broke the glass from the sign and threw it into the nearby creek. The Hamburglar has not yet been ruled out as a suspect.

An Argonne Road resident in Hampton Bays is still trying face the fact that his Mets tickets in fact are gone. He told police that he parked his Corvette in his driveway last Wednesday afternoon around 2 p.m. and returned at about 3 to find his tickets had been scalped.

A 30-year-old Riverhead man was arrested after police discovered that the car he was driving was uninsured, had no inspection, one tail light missing and license plates from another vehicle. He was initially pulled over for the lack of his right tail light but was charged with aggravated unlicensed operation in the second degree.

An East Hampton real estate company made it appear to police that they were trying to sell East Hampton Village property last Sunday. Village Police officers removed two signs belonging to the company that were placed near Stephen Hand's Path.

The James Lane Cafe in East Hampton was the latest victim of the eat-and-run hamptonites on Saturday. Police caught up with the frugally dining pair and got them to pay the restaurant and escape charges of theft of services.

A crafty camper found himself behind bars in East Hampton Sunday night. While on patrol, officers spotted a green van parked on the beach camp grounds with its headlights off. Upon investigating, they discovered a man sleeping inside and noticed some other peculiar things. The man inside had cut up his NYS inspection sticker and rearranged the numbers to read a legal inspection and had also placed plates on his vehicle which had been previously voluntarily surrendered. Police woke the man up and arrested him on charges of criminal possession of a forged instrument, camping on the beach and imitation or counterfeit certificate of inspection.

Dan's Letters

OUR TROOPS IN THE GULF

Dear Dan,

I was reading the article about Brigadier General Vincent E. Boles in the April 4 addition of Dan's Papers.

My husband Street, and I have two of our three sons in the military. Dave, the oldest of the two (age 34) was a Green Beret for seven years, left the service and joined the Army reserves last October. He is attached to a Civil Affairs Battalion and at this time we do not know where he is stationed. He has a wife and four young sons who live in Glen Head, LI. Drew, the youngest (age 32) joined the navy after September 11, 2001. He is corpsmen aboard the hospital ship USNS Comfort stationed in the Persian Gulf.

THE EEL LIVES ON

Dear Dan,

I know this may sound a bit silly, but can I request a copy of your February 14, issue. I have been following your story about the large Ecuadorian eel found in Trout pond. My boyfriend and I are from out west and we recently ventured out to Trout pond. Hopefully we had the correct location because we didn't see anything unusual. We were out to Southampton this past week and picked up the March 14 issue of your paper. We read the article titled The Lure and found it quite interesting. We even drove out to Gabreski Airport to witness the arrival of "Greta". We were unfortunate to not experience the landing after waiting patiently for eight hours. Sadly we drove through town to ask some of the locals but they laughed at us. Could you please respond to me with some information please and can you also forward me March 14, issue.

Thank you.

Michelle

HEY VINNY, HOW ARE YOU?

Dear Dan,

Fortuitously I happened to stop by the Golden Pear in Stony Brook on Saturday morning and picked up a Dan's Paper (glad to see that the paper is migrating "up-Island").

I glanced at the SOS announcement on page 14 and read the quote by Brigadier General Vincent E. Boles. After a moment I thought could this be the Vinny that I knew? The article and his picture on page 24 confirmed my suspicion. The last time I saw Vinny was on graduation day at Niagara University — May 1976. We received our degrees and were both commissioned as Second Lieutenants that day. I knew Vinny well (same freshman year dorm floor and senior year housemate). He was quite a ham, well liked, and an all around good guy. To make a few extra bucks, he even worked as a bartender at the Ratskeller, our campus pub. A hard worker, I am not surprised he made Brigadier General.

If Vinny elects to retire from the U.S. Army he would be a shoe-in for Bob Gafney's job! Send him my very best regards and thanks for doing a tough job overseas.

PS. Did the East End ever rid itself of that pesky eel?

Yes —D.R.

IT'S US, REALLY...WE PROMISE

Dear Dan,

Thank you for including our letter in a recent issue of Dan's Papers.

To further prove that Dan's Papers is widely read, we received calls from Lynbrook, Franklin Square and Boca Raton inquiring as to whether the Mel and Paul Zuckerman is "us".

We are really Mel and Pearl Zuckerman.

ANOTHER POETRY CONTEST

Dear Dan,

Faith Is A Daffodil — 9/11
When the ground air finally cleared
There was this great, wide empty hole
Not patriotic to just look away
Remembering what stood before
The slaughter of innocents

A Hundred years after we are gone
And this is forgotten past time
Thousands of daffodils planted for 9/11's lost souls burst into glorious Springtime renewal of life

— e.e.de' 'pazzi

I applaud your setting the record straight on these so-called scams that entice unwary poets seeking recognition. My mailbox just got a new one from Famouspoets.com in Talent, Oregon, with important dated material. Has a handling fee of five dollars per poem with Grand Prize of $1,000. Before I mail off an entry, I would like to run it by Dan's Papers Letters to the Editor for approval. It speaks of the thousands of daffodils that were planted for the victims of 9/11, in their memory. I will read it at the Center Moriches Library, April 26, celebrating National Poetry Month with other invited poets. It must be a lucrative business making us all bards! I've known two or three persons who attended the conventions and bought the "big book" with all the thrill of being published.

Try not to grin and say, "I told you so."

SAVE THEM, DON'T EAT THEM

Dear Dan,

I just wanted to tell you that "Hamptons Week" was a wonderful restaurant promotion.

Congratulations to WordHampton for such a fine job. During the week, my crowd dined at several excellent restaurants. We were just a bit appalled at the specialty served up by one of the best in the village. "Penne a la Plover (served Piping hot!)" However, it was quite tasty.

$1 MILLION TICKETS FOR "BAD HAIR" DAYS

Dear Dan,

Something needs to be done about the excessive ticketing and related fines charged to Hamptons drivers and visitors, particularly during the off-season.

While policing is expected to peak during the increased visitation of the busy June-September season, continued excessive ticketing for quotas during the off-season seems to make a statement that the local force has nothing better to do or perhaps there is a desperate financial situation hitting the Hamptons townships.

Not only is ticketing aggressive, fines appear to be increasing exponentially. Have you noticed the latest fines for common violations? $80 seatbelt violation, $105 minimum speeding ticket, $1000 for parking on beach violation...etc.

ASK THE EAST END'S #1 SWAMI

Dear Dan,

Recently, Someone who knows that I frequent the east End asked me what the term is (made famous by East End artists) used to describe the evening light that gets softened with the mist at dusk, well it is making me crazy because I cannot remember what they call it.

Can you help?

Dear Customer,

Thank you for considering our company for your fencing needs. I would like to tell you about Consumer Fence, as well as educate you about our industry. There are some key points you need to be made aware of as you are in the process of making a large investment. There are many options and styles for you to choose from. That is why it is so important to ask questions and to know the product. In the outline to follow you will learn what it is you need to look for when deciding on a fence.

1. Knowledge of the Product

You should know exactly what you are receiving as far as quality and material components. As you know, P.V.C. has become the most popular fencing product. The plastic division of our company has continually increased 30% each year for the last three years. Research the type of vinyl being used. We fabricate (build on our premises) "virgin vinyl" or "mono extruded." This is true vinyl in its purest form. It is the strongest, will hold up to the elements better and should not discolor. On the other hand, others use "co extruded vinyl" which can be recycled materials on the inside and virgin only on the outer layer. This is a cheaper route for other companies to take. The construction of all the privacy panels include a 2" x 8" bottom rail. This prevents sagging at the bottom of your fence, obviously a very important detail to ask about. The gate, whether you choose one or two remains the most important element of your fence. We build our gates on a 5' x 5' frame. The gates are thick and rigid. This creates a solid and sturdy beginning for the years of use to come. Inside the frame of our gate are sockets which hold the gate together. We then hang the gates on stainless steel hardware, which holds up the best compared to all other materials.

2. Workmanship

Your job will be done with the finest precision and knowledge in the industry. The installers working for Consumer Fence in all three locations are professionals who have been with us for over 12 years. Fencing is a seasonal business, and I have made a commitment to keep all of my employees in their job for all twelve months of the year. Here at Consumer Fence we are proud of our 92% employee retention rate. Most companies lay their staff off at the end of the season. This usually causes what I like to call "company jumping." When this occurs, the customer winds up with an inexperienced, unprofessional crew to install their fence. The end result being a very unpleasant, frustrating experience.

From Consumer Fence as well as Homeland Vinyl Products, Inc., you will receive a lifetime and transferable warranty. That speaks for itself. Virgin vinyl - the only product to use.

3. Pricing

We believe your price quote is also an important detail in your decision. Many consumers wonder why there can be such drastic differences in price between companies. There are a few different reasons why:

A. Material being purchased in bulk, lowering costs.

B. The quality of the grade you are purchasing

(ie: #1 cedar / spruce or #2 cedar / spruce, virgin vinyl or recycled vinyl)

These are the ploys many companies use, especially if you are not knowledgeable in these areas.

Consumer Fence is a family business dedicated to you, the consumer. We have over 18 years of experience and it is important to us that you feel comfortable from the first phone call to the end result. We believe that our commitment to fabricate and install the best P.V.C., wood and chain link systems will leave our customers very satisfied.

Thank you for choosing Consumer Fence.
